Do Nothing Policy

Poor Harding

Death at a Distance

To Reflect Falsehood

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Every newspaper, congressman, clergyman, and at least 50,000,000 others have discussed the Wickersham prohibition report. The discussion will continue, with minority members telling what they think. The fact is that the commission recommends, by a majority vote, to do nothing except to spend more money on enforcement, which according to the commission's unanimous opinion does not enforce.

The President approves the commission's condemnation of repeal or modification. Therefore there will be no change in the law or the national policy until March 4, 1933, in any case, and the public mind and the presidential mind should turn to other things. This nation was not established, and presidents are not elected to spend an eternity discussing whiskey and beer.

The public will applaud President Hoover's determination to officiate at the Harding memorial celebration. Harding was a President of the United States, and President Hoover, setting aside any personal opinion, acts well in accepting the Harding committee's invitation.

Alas, poor Harding. This celebration and Mr. Hoover's acceptance remind you of a Western funeral, at which no one rose to say a good word for the deceased, until after 10 minutes waiting, one tall man got up and was asked, "Are you a friend of the deceased?" He replied, "Not exactly, for I never heard of him. But I'm a friend of any man that has as few friends as he seems to have here."

Distance lends enchantment, perhaps. It surely creates indifference. Under the heading, "Millions dead of famine," you read six lines of Associated Press copy to the effect that in China's Shensi province some 2,000,000 have died of hunger and 400,000 have been sold into slavery, within a short time. Are we our brothers' keepers? Not if the brothers live 7000 miles away.

Chicago's police have a "lie meter," that, attached to the arm of a suspect under cross-examination, tells soon he is lying. It measures the human heart, not taught to lie, changes in that, when the anxious process of lieing begin. In this, barricaded natives, giving testimony, will still strut brazen faces. But they twitch their big toes, and lawyers watch their feet. A well-known capitalist twitched his thumb when bluffing at poker, and lost large sums until he began holding the cards with four fingers, the thumb kept hidden.

The Red Cross in Arkansas has begun feeding children that reach the public schools too hungry to study. And Arkansas is not the only state with hungry children. In Ohio, a rural school principal wrote asking how she could keep her 135 school children from starving. Inspection of lunch boxes revealed in some cases a raw potato, in others a hard biscuit, with a small piece of salt pork.

How soon will a government that has decided to feed children's minds with books and teachers realize that a starved body cannot learn, add food for the body to provide food for the brain? If the government wants to help the farmers, afflicted with ever production of food, why not let the farms feed the children? That would do more to help farmers than storing 90,000,000 bushels of government wheat in grain elevators.

This is written in a fertile country. F. A. Schenck, farmer, has four more children than he had last week. His wife, with two children on each arm, looks happy, but tired. Her two boys and two girls were born between 8 and 9:25 in the evening. They weigh 17 pounds and are healthy. This offsets four young women that keep their minds on names in marriage, and decide that having children is bad for the figure.

Russia's newspapers make fun of our congressional committee, on the activities of "Reds" or Communists, and say with contempt that the report of a great Communist menace in America "reflects capitalist fear." Next to a man with a basket of eggs on his head, the most nervous human is one with a few millions in the bank. He thinks everybody wants to get them, and he is right. But fear makes things worse. And, if our dist nguished best minds don't find some way of supplying employment, or at least food, in the world's richest country, they will have other worries that will make them forget about Russia.

DRY LAW TO BE ISSUE AT 1932 POLLS

Hoover's Attitude on Wickersham Report Is Seen as Political Challenge

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 22—Forty-eight hours of reflection upon the Wickersham report and the developments that followed it have convinced the politicians in Washington that the president's election of 1932 is going to provide that "great and solemn" referendum on the prohibition question which the campaign of 1928 might have produced, had it not been for the injection of other issues.

There is scarcely a political leader here, Republican or Democratic, wet or dry, conservative or progressive, who does not believe that President Hoover has elected to stand for reelection as a bone-dry next year, and that he will be opposed by a Democrat opposed to prohibition and standing pat on a wet Democratic platform.

They believe that President Hoover, in his message to Congress transmitting the Wickersham report, has burned his bridges behind him on the prohibition question, and with them his party's bridges as well.

MUST ACCEPT ISSUE

They believe that the Democrats will have no other recourse but to accept the issue and take it to the party of the electorate both in platform and candidate.

There is apprehension in both parties concerning the outcome for both parties are badly split. Prohibition has developed a cutting edge that has gone deeply into both sides.

Northern Democrats are almost

INSPECTOR DENNESSEY OREN L. TAYLOR

TRAIN ROBBERS GET $3000; SHOOT ONE

Masked Band in Daring Holdup of "Big Four" Express in Ohio

Bellefontaine, O., Jan. 22 (AP)—Six bandits, masked and armed, held up a Big Four train en route from Detroit to Cincinnati early today, shot one passenger and escaped with money and jewelry estimated at $3000.

Dan R. Nelson, Jr., of Tampa, Fla., was shot under the left arm when he shifted for help. He was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

The names of the passengers and the amounts taken follow:

VICTIMS AND LOSSES

E. W. Warner, Cincinnati, $20.
A. McPherson and wife, Cedar Springs, Ont., $90.
W. W. Young and wife, Toronto, not robbed, slept through holdup.
Mrs. L. G. Dearing, Chattanooga, Tenn., diamond ring, valued at $900.
Mrs. E. J. Zacharias, Atlanta, a diamond studded wrist watch, valued at $300, and $60 in cash.

The bandits, it is believed, boarded the train at Carey, north of here, where it stopped for coal. As the train neared here, they entered the second sleeping car from the rear, roused the seven passengers in it and at gun points herded all excepting Nelson into the drawing room. Brakeman Morrison, who happened into the car, was forced to join the passengers.

ROBBERS ESCAPE.

While one robber stood guard, the others took the passengers' valuables.

Nelson shouted when he was roused. He was told to keep still, but half awake, he shouted again and was shot.

As the train slowed down for the station here, the bandits leaped and ran toward a filling station, where it was thought they had had an automobile waiting.

The women said they were treated with much consideration by the robbers. One of the robbers made two of the others get blankets to wrap around the passengers who were cold.

All of the passenger agreed that the job was bungled as though the robbers were amateurs that they overlooked many valuables when they ransacked the berths.

Senate Should Abolish The Nye Committee

THE activities of the Nye committee are merely, as far as can be discerned, publicity and promotion for Senator Nye and his associates. These activities are entirely exceeding the requirements of the situation and the intent of the Constitution and are invading and violating the very plain rights of the States.

United States senators are representatives of the several States.

The states have the fundamental, constitutional and moral right to elect the senators they desire to represent them and to have those senators allowed to represent them.

The federal government was created by the states.

The rights of the federal government were given to it by the states.

All the rights not given to the federal government were definitely reserved to the states.

The states as independent entities are represented in the federal government by their duly and constitutionally elected senators.

The federal government has no authority to deprive any of the states of their reserved rights.

The United States Senate is a part of the federal government, but the states are directly represented in the federal government by their several senators.

The source of Congressional power to deal in any way with the election of senators is the article of the Constitution which provides,—that the times, places and manner of holding elections for senators shall be prescribed in each state by the Legislature there, but that Congress may at any time make or alter such regulations except as to the places of choosing senators.

The power thus conferred upon Congress is a limited one and as Chief Justice Hughes himself argued, before the Supreme Court of the United States, in a recent and leading case:

"It was not intended otherwise to detract from the freedom of the people of the states with respect to their political activities."

Senators are elected according to the election laws of the several states, and as long as they are so

MYSTERY OF THREE YEARS CLEARED BY STORY

Youth Held in Holdup Says He Shot Lunch Owner Who Threw Cleaver

A startling confession to a Back Bay murder and a series of holdups, robberies and thefts was recited at police headquarters today by one of two New York youths arrested yesterday in Worcester according to police.

The murder was that of Feador Chychuck, proprietor of the Parker Lunch, 230 Huntington ave., near Mass ave., Back Bay, whose body was found the morning of April 28, 1927, at the back door of his lunchroom. He had been shot to death.

After talking with Special Officer Francis McGeever of the East Dedham st. station, the youth arrested and locked as Gerald Lee, 21, for holdups of dental offices, suddenly said he would accede to McGeever's advice to "come clean."

McGeever reported to headquarters that the boy told him his real name was Oren Lee Taylor and that he had murdered a man.

TELLS OF SLAYING

Supt. Michael H. Crowley and Deputy Supt. James McDevitt questioned the youth at headquarters and quoted him in a description of the murder that fitted exactly the finding of Chychuck's body.

"I stole the gun from a Dr. Woodruff," they quoted the youth.

"The place was closed when I got there, so I went around to the back door and rapped. He came down the stairs, there's a slope there that makes the back door below the street floor level of the lunchroom, and he opened the door and asked me what I wanted.

"I told him I wanted his money and he made a punch at me. Then he ran and got a cleaver after I fired a shot and missed. He didn't hit me with the cleaver, but after he threw it, I fired the second shot and he dropped."

SURRENDERED AND FREED

"What did he say after he fell?" Supt. Crowley said he asked the youth, and quoted the youth's answer that "He mumbled something."

"A week later I was told the police wanted to question me about it and I surrendered here (Northampton) to Prosecutor Harry Pierce," the officials quoted the confession.

"After I decided I knew anything about it I was turned loose."

Inspector James A. Dennessey of the homicide squad was assigned to the reopening of the case with Inspector Pierce while the police heads queried the youth further on the holdups and robberies.

A contractor who filled in a Jersey st. field for a parking space was sought by police after Inspector Dennessey went there with Special Officer McGeever in search

ROOT ADMITS U. S. ONLY 'VAGUELY' PROTECTED BY LEAGUE COURT

QUESTIONED BY BORAH AND REED

Foreign Relations Committee of Senate Probes Menace of Advisory Opinions

By EDWARD L. RODDAN
Universal Service

Washington, Jan. 22—The United States is only "vaguely" protected against the menace of advisory opinions by the League of Nations court, Elihu Root has admitted to the Senate foreign relations committee.

This reluctant admission drawn yesterday from the elderly co-author of the Root-Hurst formula was in sharp contrast to the claims of President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson that this nation is fully protected under the revised protocols, now awaiting consideration by the Senate.

Root said recent amendments to the court statutes safeguarded this country against advisory opinions in which the United States has an interest. Questioned by Senator Reed (R) of Penn., he agreed this was "rather vaguely done."

WOMEN AT HEARING

For two hours, Root had pleaded for American participation in the League Court "experiment" as an aid to international peace.

An emotional atmosphere was given the hearing by the presence of a large delegation of women delegates to the convention for the "cause and cure of war," all avowed court supporters, who packed the committee room almost to the exclusion of other spectators.

On one occasion, the witness was visibly taken back when Senator Reed informed him that his interpretation was different from that of Secretary of State Stimson.

When Root concluded, several members of the committee declared they were still in doubt as to the effect of the Root formula.

Senator Borah, an avowed court foe, asked:

"Is there any circumstance under which the court can render an advisory opinion concerning which the United States claims an interest without its consent?"

Root answered hesitatingly "I don't think so." Then he told about the new article 68 of the revised court statutes which he admitted was "rather vaguely done."

PARRIED QUESTION

The witness parried the question of Senator Johnson (R.), of California, as to whether he believed in the Senate reservation as necessary for the protection of the United States. He explained that he accepted the reservations as the basis for negotiations at Geneva without questioning the Senate's purpose in adopting them.

Root gave his theory of how the United States is protected against advisory opinions when Senator Reed said he was dissatisfied with the explanations offered heretofore. Reed explained that he was anxious to have this difficulty explained before he voted upon ratification of the revised protocols in the Senate.

Senator Borah joined Reed in the questioning. The text follows:

Senator Borah—Mr. Root, under reservation five adopted by the Senate, the court could not render an advisory opinion touching a matter in which the United States had an interest or claimed interest?

Mr. Root—Yes.

Senator Borah—Are there any circumstances under which the court can now render an advisory opinion in which the United States has an interest or claims an interest, without its consent?

Mr. Root—I do not think there is. I do not think there is, but under the effect of the general amendments to the court statutes—

Senator Borah—Under Article 68?

Mr. Root—Article 68, I think.

RATHER VAGUELY DONE

Senator Borah—But taking the formula that we have before us, the question with me is whether or not under any circumstances which may arise, the court may proceed to render an advisory opinion without our consent in a matter in which we have an interest, or claim an interest.

Mr. Root—I think not. I think not. I think that when you consider the effect of the general amendments which are a sequence to the adoption of this protocol that we are not discussing, after having accepted the provision that they should not have jurisdiction to entertain any question which involved the interests of the United States, without its consent, and accepting the arrangement about publicity of advisory proceedings, they want to put into the statute by way of amendments in the other protocol, to put into the statute the substance of the rules of the court—of the murder weapon the youth said he threw there.

Senator Reed—That is rather vaguely done in Article 68, is it not, Mr. Root?

Mr. Root—It is rather vaguely done. You have got to read it with reference to the history and they added Article 68. When you read that, you must recall the decision in the Eastern Corelle case, and the provisions regarding contested cases which come into court in the ordinary way, which limits the jurisdiction of the court to cases in which consent is given.

A checkup of pawnshops was started also for record of the pawning of a blue overcoat, Taylor said he pawned the day after the murder.

The holdups included drug stores in Neponset and So. Huntington ave., Back Bay; Hunt's Lunch in Huntington ave., the dental office of Dr. Gene E. Kenswell of 37 Tremont st., and four New York holdups.

He said he had been living at a Berkeley st. hotel, a few steps from headquarters, but his real address was 356 W. 34th st., New York city.

Police said the lunch room murder was enacted with $58 as the prize, and investigation at the time showed a hacked ice chest fitted in with the confession of today when police reported the youth said he had hacked the chest to secure the money.

Chychuck, the murdered man, lived at 40 East Dedham st. Police were never able to find any near relatives, but said they found he had friends in Russia.

Birmingham to Pick Democratic Board

Democratic members of the legislature held an organization meeting at the tate House, late this afternoon, at which Rep. Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton, House minority floor leader, was authorized to appoint a steering committee.

This committee, to consist of 15 representatives and three senators, in addition to the two minority floor leaders, will consult with Gov. Ely at times on legislation, Rep. Birmingham said he probably would announce the members of the new committee tomorrow. Rep. Frank J. McDonald, Dorchester, was elected secretary.

Senate Should Abolish The Nye Committee

legally and constitutionally elected, the United States Senate is transcending its moral rights and probably its Constitutional rights and violating the rights of the states when it denies these duly elected senators their seats in the Senate because of rules and senators their seats in the Senate because rules and regulations, or even laws of Congress, which go beyond the power of the Senate as defined and expressly limited in the Constitution.

Inasmuch as the Senate is persistently failing in so many directions to maintain its constitutional rights and to sustain the dignity and the importance of the senatorial body, it is somewhat grotesque and incongruous that the Senate should go so far afield in one direction to exceed its rights.

But the situation is more vital than even this incongruity indicates.

The action of the Nye committee, let us clearly realize, is a direct invasion of the rights of the states and a definite defiance of the rights of the people of the states, to be represented in the Senate by the individuals they have elected in accordance with the laws of the states and the Constitution of the United States.

The activity of the Nye committee is based on no public demand or moral requirement, and the menace of its action is too great to be justified by the desire of its members to advertise themselves and to keep themselves—even though objectionably—in the public mind.

The Nye committee should be abolished. The Senate of the United States should leave to the several states the election of their Senators according to the laws of the states and the judgment of the people of the states.

It should heed the warning recently and impressively uttered by the United States Supreme Court, not to ignore powers clearly vested in the states under the Constitution and the federal character of the Government.

And if the United States Senate does not cease to invade the rights of the states it should be deprived by the states of the privilege which the states in constitutional convention gave it and which it abuses, of being the judge of the fitness of its own members.

G. O. P. LEADERS HERE MUM ON HOOVER

But There Is Plenty of Gloom Over President's Stand on the Dry Report

Republican leaders in Massachusetts shied today when asked to discuss the effect of the Wickersham report and the firm dry stand of President Hoover on the G. O. P. plans in the Bay State.

Amos L. Taylor, chairman of the Republican State committee, when asked as to the truth of a report that the President's attitude had left the party in Massachusetts in a serious dilemma, said:

"I don't care to discuss the attitude of President Hoover or the local situation in any way."

Former State Senator Eben S. Draper, who opposed William S. Butler in the race for United States Senator, said:

"I have nothing whatever to say at this time."

Other leaders were equally reticent.

PLENTY OF GLOOM

But there was deep concern and gloom behind the scenes. As a matter of fact, the predicament in which the Republican party in the Bay State found itself because of the President's stand was the chief topic of conversation in political and business circles.

It had been no secret for weeks that the G. O. P. leaders in this State, or to be more accurate, the wing that tried to unseat Taylor as chairman of the State committee had planned a wet declaration as a bid for popular support.

NOW COMES CONFUSION

It was felt that emergency demanded it. The Republican platform in the last State convention had straddled the liquor issue. In effect it announced that the party would be subject to the mandate of the voters.

The victory for the Democrats and the wets was so positive the Republican leaders had girded themselves for a bit of prohibition acrobatics when along came the report of the Wickersham commission and confusion.

But that would not have interfered with the wet declaration planned by the Republicans of the Bay State if President Hoover had not taken such a firm stand as a dry.

ILLNESS CAUSES GARRETT TRIAL DELAY

Postponement Ordered Due to Inability of Mrs. Garrett to Appear in Court

The continued illness of Mrs. Florence H. Garrett again today caused postponement of the Garrett trial.

Miss Lillian V. Hatch, on trial with Oliver B. Garrett, ex-police liquor raider, and Mrs. Garrett for alleged conspiracy, was the only one of the three defendants at the bar when court opened this morning.

After a 15 minute conference of Judge Patrick M. Kesting with all counsel, court excused the jurors until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for the women defendants, said he had been given to understand by a physician that Mrs. Garrett was suffering from a grippey cold.

Mrs. Garrett's illness halted the trial shortly before noon yesterday, temperature above normal.

The government, which has been presenting its case for 12 days, still has several witnesses to put on before the defense opens.

Dryness of Hoover Is Seen as 1932 Campaign Issue

100 per cent wet, southern Democrats are overwhelmingly dry. Eastern Republicans are predominently wet; western Republicans are correspondingly dry.

Party leaders envision sharp fights in both conventions over platforms, but, as one Democrat expresser, it:

"They might just as well be written now."

In the list of leading Democratic presidential possibilities at this time there is not a single outstanding dry; Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor Albert C. Ritchie, Owen D. Young—all are opposed to prohibition.

HOOVER ENDS DOUBT.

And in the past 10 days has been added the name of Newton D. Baker, who was one of the two members of the Wickersham commission to recommend outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

There is, properly speaking, no list of Republican possibilities other than Mr. Hoover himself. If the party leaders had any doubts whatever as to his intention of standing for re-election they were dispelled by his message on the Wickersham report.

He has already begun to gather about him the men and the equipment upon which he will rely in the oncoming campaign.

McAdoo Hits Dry Report as "Weak"

Los Angeles, Jan. 22 (AP)—After reading the Wickersham report, William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, said:

"The weakness of the Wickersham report on prohibition is that it commits suicide and leaves us weeping at its grave. It starts out by saying that prohibition is all right and should be enforced and that the Eighteenth Amendment ought not to be repealed.

"All of this is then negatived by the recommendations of individual members for repeal, modification and government sale of liquor.

"I do not like indecision. I am for the Eighteenth Amendment and for strict enforcement of prohibition. Civilization has passed the whiskey era. We are witnessing the death struggles of alcohol. The next generation will look upon it as we look upon morphine and cocaine.

"Up to this time there has been no courageous and sincere effort to enforce prohibition. Prohibition can be enforced but it will take a strong government to do it."

Fess Says Hoover Hasn't "Closed Door" on Dry Change

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Emphasis was made today by Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, to the point that President Hoover, in objecting to the Wickersham commission's substitute Eighteenth Amendment, had not closed the door to all revision proposals.

Party leaders looked significantly at this statement of Senator Fess, who is chairman of the Republican national committee and an advisor of Mr. Hoover's. He was at the White House yesterday.

The Ohioan would not say that Mr. Hoover favored any other revision or had any other idea for modification in mind.

"I just simply say," explained Fess, "that Mr. Hoover did not close the door to any revision when he rejected this substitute amendment because it would throw prohibition forever into politics."

McCormick Says Direct Vote Never Taken on Law

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 22 (AP)—Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick, a member of the Wickersham commission said today in his opinion the question of prohibition has never been given the direct vote of the American people as provided by the Constitution.

"Ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment was made by legislatures, the judge declared in commenting on the Wickersham report "and few, if any, of the members of the respective legislatures were elected because of their views on prohibition."

Commenting that the commission report, Judge McCormick said the members expected prohibition a revolving issue of comment and said he served as a "patriotic duty."

Baker Refuses to Discuss Dry Report

Monte Carlo, Jan. 22 (AP)—Newton D. Baker, member of the Wickersham commission, today declined to discuss the commission's report. He authorized the following statement:

"I have nothing to say. This is no time for me to give enemies an opportunity to attack my stand. What I have to say has been written in my reports."

Woodcock Will Accept All Agents Provided

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Prohibition Director Woodcock today answered the contention of the Wickersham commission that his request for 500 additional dry agents was too small with the statement:

"If Congress wants to give us more we will accept them gratefully."

Marshal Petain Made One of French "Immortals"

Paris, Jan. 22 (AP)—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, defender of Verdun, today became one of the "French "immortals" by election to the French Academy, succeeding Marshal Foch.

Petain hated publicity, and correspondents at the front during the war were under strict orders not to mention his name, but his famous words, "They shall not pass," echoed around the world.

Marshal Petain

A colonel when the war started, he soon gained fame at Dinant when, at the head of his regiment he charged and repelled the Germans, with a whip in one hand and a revolver in the other.

He is a man of great physical endurance and a reckless speed maniac.

Sousa Setting Poe's "Annabel Lee" to Music

Baltimore, Jan. 22 (AP)—John Philip Sousa, the march king, has fallen under the magic of Edgar Allen Poe's story and is setting "Annabel Lee" to music—working from a beautiful chair Poe is buried in Baltimore.

John P. Sousa

Fifty years of active musical life and 350 compositions lie behind Sousa, and yet when an old injury sent him to Johns Hopkins hospital for treatment, he could not break off working.

"When you hear of Sousa retiring, you will hear of Sousa dead," he once said. Now he announces this sentiment is unaltered.

Laundry Had Number of Heywood Broun's Wife

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—A laundry sure enough had Ruth Hale's number. But she got it back.

That's why the wife of Heywood Broun has been getting strange telephone calls from irascible parties.

"Come over and get the wash."

"When you gonna send back those shirts?" "My collar buttons are missing again."

The telephone company explained that in the new system of exchanges the laundry by mistake had been given the equivalent of Miss Hale's number in dialing. They righted the wrong.

FAITH HEALING WINS SUPPORT OF ANGLICAN CHURCHMEN

LEADERS SEE WAY TO AID AFFLICTED

Drastic Move Wil' Avoid Any Effort to Revive the "Medieval Errors"

London, Jan. 22 (AP)—With only three dissenting votes the lower house of the Canterbury convocation of the Church of England today gave its approval to faith healing and asked that it be given the official sanction of the church.

A petition to the Archbishop of Canterbury asked him to appoint a joint commission to frame a new ritual service for unction by the imposition of hands.

The vote on the resolution followed discussion in which Christian Science was derided and criticized. The Rev. T. F. Monahan criticized it as a reflection upon the Anglican Church.

In other speeches it was praised as a means of faith healing.

FAITH IS ESSENTIAL

"We cannot lose sight of the fact," said the Rev. Monahan, "that a great deal of what is called 'faith healing' is really due to natural causes, and that real faith which is essential to effective prayer is often absent. That is why the cures from what I regard as error often seem to be greater than those of the Church, where mental healing is concerned."

The bishop of Winchester read Christian Science had grown out of issues of neglect by the Church of England.

"Communicants in our churches," he said, "are continually leaving Christian Science. They say that 'I have been in the church for thirty years, but I have never heard spiritual healing mentioned once.' Since I have joined Christian Science I have never heard anything else. I went to get what has been taken from me by my church."

BAR MEDICAL BODIES

In asking for a vote on his resolution, Precendary Harris characterized the discussion and the resolution as an "historic occasion." He moved a supplementary resolution, which, also was passed, suggesting that modern therapeutics and psychology as applied to mental and nervous sufferers be taken into account in framing the proposed service for the physically infirm.

"There is not the slightest idea in the minds of any of us," he said, "of bringing back any of the medieval ideas associated with extreme unction and such errors. I have a horror of medieval errors."

WALSH OPENS NEW FIGHT ON POWER BOARD

Montana Senator Seeks to Have Names of Three Returned to Committee

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—A motion to refer back to the Senate interstate commerce committee the names of the three members of the power commission whose nominations President Hoover refused to return to the Senate was made today by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana.

Walsh said if the motion prevailed he would offer a resolution directing the district attorney here to institute action to test the right of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper to hold office.

HITS AT HOOVER.

Refusal of the Senate's request for the return of the nominations was assailed by him. He pointed out that the Senate rules provide for reconsideration of confirmation of nominees, although their nominations had been sent to the President.

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, pointed out that the rules only permitted reconsideration within two days, but that the Senate might not meet two days following confirmation for several weeks or months.

"Doesn't reconsideration after such a period invade the executive power of removal?" inquired Vandenberg.

"Not at all," insisted Walsh.

WOULD DELAY ACTION

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, suggested in event the Walsh motion carried, the resolution for court action be withheld until the Senate "rejected" the nominations so as to "strengthen" its position in the courts.

Census Taker Finds Family of Jobless Vet Minus Food

EVELYN LOUISE LOUIS ERNEST JOSEPH

A QUART OF MILK has to go a long way in the family of Ernest Seueri, World War veteran, of 50 Palmer st., Roxbury, who has been without work for six months. Refusing to appeal to charity for aid, Seueri managed to keep his family of six children together by obtaining a loan on his war insurance. The plight of the Roxbury family was bared yesterday by a census taker that called at the home. He found Mrs. Seueri ill, and oldest girl, Evelyn, filling mother's role. (Staff photo.)

POLICE BALK KIDNAP PLOT

Detroit, Jan. 22 (AP)—A $100,000 kidnap plot against one of the young children of Horace S. Maynard, wealthy Detroit business man, was thwarted by detectives last night with the arrest of two men who went to the Maynard home, the officers said, to abduct the child.

Later two other men and a woman were arrested, and the four men were said by Duncan B. McCrea, assistant prosecuting attorney, to have confessed.

The plot was conceived by two unemployed men who met casually on a park bench a week ago, McCrea said, and the other men, also unemployed, were taken into it later.

Those under arrest are: George H. Spears, 45, formerly an accountant in the building where Maynard has his offices; Kenneth Harrington, 29, former policeman; Bernard Adusky, 21; Anthony Orlando, 31, and Orlando's wife, Lena.

The 'Bugs' Baer Commission Reports

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Some idle thoughts on a busy subject,

It took the Wickersham committee 20 months to find out what a rummy discovers in a night.

The commish is divided on revision, enforcement and repeal.

We've been getting all three for the last 10 years.

So long as the committee stays divided we can run between 'em.

What we cannot understand is why the commish didn't stay out a little longer and make it an even century.

That's the trouble with this country. Too many commissions reporting progress.

Expenditure of half-million dollars is terrific for this report. Lot of dough for such a little biscuit.

The report is practically a total waste. It's too long for Rudy Vallee to sing.

The whole thing looks like one of those Mexican divorces. Good in some states and how-have-you-been in others.

WOMEN BATTLE POLICE IN STORE

Two young women, claiming to be aunt and neice, were arrested on a shoplifting charge in a downtown department store today.

They said they were Doris Wagner, 20, and Mrs. Helen Wagner, 28, both of Center st., Jamaica Plain.

Patrolman John Dever was kicked in the knee, hit on the head with a slipper and suffered a cut in the leg in a melee during the arrest, he said. The younger woman he carried to an office in the store, he reported.

Two women store detectives who claim the women took clothing valued at $20 caused their arrest.

HOOVER BACKS DRUG PARLEY

Washington, Jan. 22 (US)—President Hoover has sent a message to Congress recommending that $25,000 be appropriated for American participation in the international conference on limitation of the manufacture of narcotic drugs, to be held at Geneva, Switzerland, May 27.

The President transmitted a statement by Secretary of State Stimson, declaring that the United States always has taken the lead in seeking international co-operation to stamp out the illicit narcotic drug traffic and urging the appropriation.

Hint U. S. Drug Barrier Is Being Circumvented

Geneva, Jan. 22—Have European nations found a loophole to circumvent the American laws forbidding the importation of manufactured narcotics?

This question is being asked in League of Nations circles today following a report from Hungary that it has been exporting "domopon" to the United States.

"Domopon" is described in the Hungarian report as a preparation containing 50 per cent morphine.

Only raw opium and coca leaves, from which the various narcotic drugs are manufactured, are permitted by law to enter the United States. The latest American narcotic report to the league does not show the importation of "domopon" from Hungary.

League circles are wondering, therefore, how the Hungarians obtained permission to send the morphine preparation to the United States.

Oldest Drug Plant in Istanbul Closed by Law

Istanbul, Turkey, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Turkish ministry of hygiene today closed the oldest narcotic factory in Istanbul on the grounds of exportation of morphine illicitly.

A Turkish official pointed out that the closing was an indication of the government's determination to end drug smuggling.

SENATE CALL ON COURT HINTED

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—Speculation was renewed today as to whether consideration of the administration's League Court protocols by the Senate could be deferred until December in view of the appearance before the Senate foreign relations committee of Elihu Root, father of the compromise proposal under which the United States might adhere.

Senator Johnson (R.) of California, League Court foe, predicted the President would call a special session of the Senate even if an extra session of Congress were avoided.

"It would not surprise me in the least, in view of the President's success in the matter of obtaining ratification of the London naval treaty by calling a special session of the Senate," Johnson said.

On the other hand, Senator La Follette (R.) of Wisconsin, another court opponent, said he expected nothing more would be done until December.

Subway Locker Used for Drug Storage

A subway locker at Arlington station was used for storage of morphine, it was testified today in federal court when a federal undercover agent testified against Louis Moskowitz on drug charges.

The agent, who gave his name as G. Fineberg, told Judge James A. Lowell and a jury Moskowitz sold him 13 tins of one ounce each for $210 and that he went with him to the locker to get it. The case was unfinished today.

Five Men Are Killed by Drinking Party

Ashland, Ky., Jan. 22 (INS)—An all-night drinking party, the participants resorting to the drinking of alcohol prepared as an antifreeze mixture for automobile radiators, ended today with the deaths of five men.

The victims were Charles W. Brown, 43; Cyrus O'Brien, 54; Ben Fannin, 58, and Beryl Wilcox, 23, all of Ashland, and Dudley Gee, 37, of Olive Hill, Ky.

JURY IN DE VOE CASE STILL OUT

Los Angeles, Jan. 22—Twelve jurors—seven men and five women—were still struggling to settle their differences on what would be the fate of Daisy De Vos, erstwhile confidante of Clara Bow, who is charged with grand larceny from the "It" girl.

The jury has been out since three o'clock (California time) yesterday. At 10 a. m., the jury returned to its chambers from a hotel, where it was taken last night after failing to reach a verdict.

Lynn Firms Sue City Over Storm Damage

Service of writs today disclosed that two concerns are to sue the city of Lynn for $29,000 damages arising out of the heavy rainstorm of last July 24. Cellars were flooded and improper installation and maintenance of sewers and drains is alleged.

The Hutchinson Hardware Co. alleges $5,000 damages and the Brownell Paint Co., $14,000. The writs were served on City Treasurer Frank A. Turnbull, who referred them to the city law department. The suits will be filed in Essex County Superior Court, Salem.

Brockton Man Dying With Wrist Slashed

Brockton, Jan. 22—Found with his left wrist slashed in a building on the fair grounds, George Fairbanks, 60 of Elmer st., is dying from loss of blood in Brockton Hospital. John O'Leary of Vinona st., a schoolboy, heard his groans and found him. Police say that early today Fairbanks threw himself in front of an automobile on Crescent st and the driver, Evan Walton of East Bridgewater, overturned the car in avoiding him. Walton was uninjured.

Court and Police Headquarters Move

Newton court and police headquarters moved some 50 feet today with business transacted, but not without some complaints.

The police bore the burden of moving day, but court attaches complained that lack of running water and other facilities caused them hardships. They were asked to "bear up." The building is to be moved 200 feet to make way for the building of twin court and police buildings.

Youth, 23, Held as Killer of Three

Elizabeth City, N. J., Jan. 22 (AP)—Charged with the murder of three small children whose bodies were found in a creek near here in June, 1929, Hickery Gilden, 23, today was held without bail.

The bodies were of Mellie Powells, 13; Frank Powells, seven, and Oscar Amet, eight. A coroner's jury returned at that time a verdict of accidental drowning.

32000 WAR VETS IN HOSPITALS

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Veterans Administrator Hines notified President Hoover today that during November and December the hospitalization of veterans had risen to its highest peak since the World War.

After his conference he said nearly 32,000 veterans are now under veterans' bureau hospital care.

The utilization of soldiers' home facilities, he added, so far this year also has exceeded any previous year's experience since their establishment in 1867. Some 23,000 veterans are at the homes.

Loans to veterans on adjusted service certificates since the first of January have been made to veterans at the rate of approximately $1,000,000 per working day.

In order to expedite the examination of veterans and their claims, the field staff has been augmented by 742 additional personnel, including 65 physicians.

During December, the veterans' administration disbursed a total of $66,397,610 for all purposes. Similar disbursements for the first half of the current fiscal year aggregated $382,551,454.

French Cabinet Decides to Stay

Paris, Jan. 22 (AP)—Premier Theodore Steeg threatened the collective resignation of his cabinet today, but after a heated session of the ministers action was postponed.

The situation arose as a result of sharp criticism of the efforts of Minister of Agriculture, Victor Boret, to fix the price of wheat.

Building Shows Gain in December

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Building operations during December in cities of more than 25,000 population, had a valuation 8.1 per cent greater than for November.

The total value of building permits issued in 293 cities amounted for December to $128,909,902, against $119,208,129 in the same places the previous month.

BAN ON SCHOOL PUNISHMENT IS URGED

Corporal punishment in the schools of the State was both favored and opposed by present and former school officials during a hearing on a bill which had been presented by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Boston.

At the hearing, held before the Legislative Committee on Education, Representative Sullivan pointed out that in some of the largest cities in the country, including New York, Chicago and Detroit, corporal punishment had been abolished.

SOCIEY WOMAN BACKS BILL

He suggested that the better form of punishment would be to detain pupils violating school rules a half hour after the regular school closing hour.

Mrs. Jessica Henderson, prominent Boston and Wayland society matron, spoke in favor of Sullivan's bill. Several former Boston school teachers also expressed the opinion that corporal punishment should be dispensed with in schools throughout the State.

Among those who opposed the bill were State Commissioner of Education Payson Smith and Assistant Superintendent of the Boston Schools M. J. Downey. Both of these school officials contended that such legislation tended to interfere with the home rule principals in the cities and towns of the State.

SYSTEM ACTS AS THREAT

Commissioner mith said that except for the interference of home rule that abolition of corporal punishment in schools was a matter for school committees in the separate cities and towns to decide.

Asst. Superintendent Downey said that the present method of inflicting corporal punishment in the Boston schools acted as a threat over the heads of unruly students and that it was his opinion that such punishment should be allowed in the schools.

SHIP IS RAMMED AND SUNK

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 22 (INS)—The Commercial Mariner, a 3500-ton steamer of the Coastline Company, was rammed and sunk by the San Simeon, an 8000-ton vessel of the Quaker Line, shortly after pulling away from the marine terminal this morning.

The rammed vessel sank almost immediately, but all the members of the crew were reported to have been saved.

The collision took place about a mile and a half off the Deep Water Dye Works on the New Jersey side of the Delaware. A huge hole was torn in the Commercial Mariner's side and she went down stern first.

The Mariner was outbound while the San Simeon was inbound.

Providence Taxi Drivers Go On Strike

Providence, R. I., Jan. 22 (AP)—Officials of the Yellow Cab Company here, owned by the New England Power Company, today notified approximately 200 striking taxi drivers that unless they report for duty tomorrow they will be regarded as discharged. The men struck this morning.

The men are striking to force recognition of the Street Carmen's Union as agent of the cab drivers. They also seek a flat wage rate of 45 cents an hour, a 10-hour day and time and a half for overtime.

90 P. C. Immigration Slash Is Approved

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—A 90 per cent cut in immigration for two years is provided in the free bill reported for passage by the House Immigration Committee today. The bill accords with Secretary of State Stimson's plan for emergency restriction of immigration.

European quotas would be reduced 90 per cent, the number entering from Canada, Mexico and South America would be reduced in like amount and Filipinos would be restricted to 500 annually.

For Coughs Too Deep To Risk A Lesser Help

Creomulsion was made to deal with coughs from colds which hang on. A three-daycough is a danger signal. There the utmost should be done.

But a trifling cough may develop into something deep and difficult. Don't you think it wise to use the utmost help, even if a lesser help might do?

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. The seven best helps known to medical science. One is best for one type of cough, one for others. Nobody can tell in advance. So the best way seems to be to combine all in one prescription.

Creosote stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and tasty. For soothing membranes and combating cold germs, the world knows nothing better.

But some coughs best yield to white pine tar, some to wild cherry bark, some to menthol, some to ipecac, etc. So we combine all these factors at their best in a single formula.

For some coughs Creomulsion is better than you need. One of its factors might do. But don't you feel safer when a minor cough is treated in the utmost way?

If so, get Creomulsion. It costs a little more than lesser helps—$1.25. But your druggist guarantees it. He returns your money if you are disappointed. You will feel safer in any cough if this master help combats it. Use it promptly.

Edison Takes Rest at Florida Home

Ft. Myers, Fla., Jan. 22 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison was back today at the winter home which has been the scene of his experiments to produce rubber from golden rod, but he planned a brief respite before plunging anew into laboratory work.

"Tell them I'm glad to be back. It feels like living again. It seems like home to me," was the statement he sent to newspapermen.

Elaborate Paint Jobs for 1950 Women

Los Angeles, Jan. 22 (US)—The smartly-gowned woman of tomorrow will obey these rules:

Her eyebrows will be green, her eyelashes silver-tipped, and her ear lobes, peeping out coquettishly from her hair, will be painted a golden hue.

Her nails will be painted to match the color of her gown, and her hair, with quick and mysterious dyes, will always harmonize with her slippers.

These predictions were made today by R. H. Myerson, authority on beauty, from Chicago, at a convention of hairdressers.

A peek into what the future holds for hair dressing styles was made by Ern Westmore, hair dresser and make-up artist.

Milady's coiffure in 1950 should consist of a $50 white wig, shrouding a buckram frame, which is fastened to the top of the wearer's head.

The frame is three feet in height and, unless doorways are made bigger by 1950, milady will have to remain in drawing rooms, Westmore said.

HARRISON HITS AT ROOTLEG BANKING

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, testified to the Senate Banking investigating committee today that the rediscount rate is to become of effect in controlling credit for stock gambling "something has got to be done to limit a bootleg bank for business" in this country.

The "bootleg" system he described as "corporations and individuals, seeing an opportunity to get high returns on available funds, who loan to brokers and dealers in stocks."

This money, he added, was loaned "wholly outside the control of the Federal Reserve Banking System."

Harrison conceded there was "speculation in New York and all over the country," and said it was a matter of great concern. He expressed hope the Senate inquiry will prove helpful.

Harrison said if the re-discount rate had been raised "more courageously and more frequently," during 1928 it would have deterred speculation in some measure.

He said the total eligible paper in the United States had declined from $4,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 in the last ten years.

Nasal Catarrh is Bad Just Now

Here's What to Do for Real Relief!

When your nasal passages are clogged up and you go about hawking, wheezing and blowing, it's a distressful and disgusting condition. But genuine relief is to be had if you'll take a little Albatum on the tip of your finger and insert it in your nostrils. This is the amazing new-type preparation that works two ways at once. It applies a soothing treatment directly to affected parts and at the same time releases penetrating vapors. The vapors relieve congestion, open the head passages and make breathing easy and natural. Albatum is clean and pleasant to use—does not stick or stain. As excellent for chest colds as it is for head colds, Albatum is sold and guaranteed by all McKesson service druggists and other independent drug stores. Remember the name, A. MEYER FOUGHT IN SENATE AS 'MORGAN MAN'

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—The long delayed on the nomination of Eugene Meyer, of New York as a member of the Federal Reserve Board was begun in the Senate today with a motion by Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa, to recommit it to the Finance Committee.

Brookhart charged there existed a "close association" between Meyer and the banking firm of J. P. Morgan and that Meyer and Morgan had attended a meeting of the Federal Reserve Bank in New York together last summer.

Referring to the row between Chairman McFadden, of the House Banking Committee and the Federal Reserve Board, Brookhart said McFadden had presented facts "which if true would warrant rejection of Mr. Meyer's nomination. He added:

"His administration of the joint stock land banks would warrant rejection. The charge has been made that there was a conspiracy on his part to destroy some of these banks.

"Chairman McFadden wrote a letter pointing out that Mr. Meyer, through his brother-in-law, attorney for J. F. Morgan & Company, secured a resignation from The Federal Reserve board to obtain a place for Mr Meyer.

"It was necessary to obtain the resignation of Edmund Platt as New York member of the board so Mr. Meyer could be appointed Platt has since been taken care of elsewhere."

The Senate finally recommitted to its banking committee the nomination of Meyer.

Greatest War Is Menacing Soviet

Moscow, Jan. 22 (AP)—Soviet Russia is threatened with the greatest war in history, Commissar of War Voroshilov declared in an address here today to the congress of Communist youths.

The Soviet Union, he declared, must organize the masses not only for the purpose of defending the country against inevitable intervention, but for victory over "the country which first draws the sword against us."

Woman Official in $50,000 'Bilking'

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 22 (INS)—Edward R. Litsinger, member of the Cook County Board of Review, returned to Chicago today following filing of a complaint with Springfield police that he had been "bilked" out of $50,000 in a faro game at a hotel here.

Litsinger charged that Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge, collector of internal revenue for the Northern District of Illinois, was a party to the game.

Mrs. Blackledge told the following story, according to police:

"I am the victim of confidence men, but there is nothing wrong so far as I am personally concerned. Mr. Litsinger understood the entire matter when the $50,000 was secured. He was to get $10,000 for the use of the money.

"I came to Springfield last Saturday and early Sunday the game opened in a downtown hotel. I won $207,500, but the man, dealing the game refused to give it to me because I could not take up a check which I had put in the game. I returned to Chicago and explained the entire matter to Mr. Litsinger, who arranged for me to get the money.

"We came to Springfield Wednesday afternoon with 50 $1000 bills and went to the hotel where the game was played. I lost the entire amount in one deal."

Ban Is Protested by Two Cuban Papers

Havana, Jan. 22 (AP)—Rafael Govin, owner of El Mundo, and Count Del Rivero, owner of Diario De La Marina, the two largest Spanish language morning papers in Cuba, today issued a protest against the government ban placed against them and seven other publishers January 9. The statement says:

"Article 25 of the Cuban constitution prohibits press censorship of any kind. The law invoked to support the newspapers is a Spanish law. We cannot believe that a Spanish law nullifies the constitution of Cuba."

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give 'Kruschen Salts' a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to exercise actively.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen salts a fair trial, I am sure it will convince anyone."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any druggistore in America. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied — money back.

Salesmen See Boom in Business by Fall

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—The National Council of Travelling Salesmen's Associations made public today its reply to a questionnaire on conditions sent out by the National Business Survey conference and predicted the last half of 1931 would "wind up in a frantic scramble for deliveries." Directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce are to meet in Washington tomorrow to consider the answers.

LYNN MAN DIES BY GAS FUMES IN GARAGE

Ernest Lincoln Rogers, 53, Lynn merchant, committed suicide by inhaling carbon monoxide fumes in his garage, according to the report of Medical Examiner Nathaniel P. Breed.

Rogers was president and treasurer of the T. W. Rogers Company, owners of one of Lynn's largest department stores. He lived at 54 Walcott rd.

... to the "garage, after asking his wife which car she was going to use and learning she was not going to use either. A short time later, recalling that he had not driven away, his wife went to the garage and found him unconscious on the floor, with the engine of one car running.

The medical examiner made his report of suicide after talking with members of the family, who are declared to have said Rogers threatened suicide previously. He had suffered two nervous breakdowns.

Rogers is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Harold E. Grover of Lynn, and a son, Thomas; also two grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Wareham and Mrs. Ira J. Haskell, both of Lynn.

CURLEY BUSY ON JOBLESS AID AT CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 22—Mayor Curley of Boston today took steps to further his unemployment relief program, including establishment of a federal planning board and the immediate sending of surplus American wheat to China.

A busy day confronted the mayor and his party, after he apparently had accomplished his first purpose in impressing leaders of the House military affairs committee with the necessity of leasing Governor's Island to Boston for an airport.

His program included a conference on airport with officials of the National Aeronautics Society, personal call on the Costa Rican minister and a call on the Chinese minister.

This noon he was guest of Senator David I. Walsh at luncheon. At this luncheon the mayor's proposed federal planning board to meet unemployment emergencies in the future was discussed. The plan probably will be laid before Congress in bills by Senator Walsh and Representative McCormack.

The ma or was to pay a courtesy call later in the day on the Irish Free State minister. He plans to return to Boston tomorrow.

SLEEPING ROOM IN DURANTS

"One of the features in Durant cars that will attract much attention at the Boston automobile show is the new Pullman attachment," says Harry C. Dunn, Boston Automobile Company. "It is standard equipment at no extra cost on the 6-10 and 6-12 models.

"Pulling out a lever at the bottom of the seat, pressing a finger and the back is lowered, converting the interior into a full sized reclining couch which is exceptionally comfortable.

"Touring in a Durant sedan with its Pullman attachment, is far more enjoyable, comfortable and economical. No need to stay at expensive hotels over night, or at others less expensive.

Robber Gets Five Years

Raymond Howard, 23, of Lynn, was sentenced to five years and a day in Concord reformatory by Judge Cox in Superior Court at Salem today. He was convicted Monday of robbery of John O'Connor of Allen ave., Lynn, on Sanderson ave. in that city last September.

CHEVROLET'S NEW MODELS ARE LONGER

With three new models in the line, Chevrolet's new car for 1931, priced from $20 to $40 lower than last year, is displayed in a wide range of passenger and commercial body types at the automobile show, says H. J. Walsh, district manager.

The three new models announced and displayed for the first time at the opening of the New York show, are a convertible cabriolet, a 5-passenger coupe, and a landau phaeton for all-season driving.

Known as "The Great American Value," the 1931 car offers in support of this slogan a two-inch increase in wheelbase, bringing it to 109 inches, larger and roomier bodies by Fisher, with mohair or broadcloth as optional trimmings, and scores of refinements in appearance and performance despite the new low prices.

NEW RECORDS PREDICTED AT AUTO SHOW

Present indications point to the 29th annual Boston Automobile Show, now in progress at Mechanics Hall, as being the greatest and most successful exhibits in motor history here. Already, with three days remaining before the show ends, exhibitors and dealers are predicting new records in attendance and sales.

In spite of those who cry depression and bewail the fact that business is on the downgrade, automobile men state that up to today they have made almost 100 per cent more sales than they had at the same time in last year's show. The sales figures also exceed those of 1929, it is said.

WOMEN FLOCK TO SHOW

A noteworthy feature of the sales and one which seems to prove conclusively that the depression is ended for the automobile industry is the number of high priced cars which are selling. During the past two years buyers seemed to avoid the larger and costlier cars as being too luxurious and beyond their means.

The number of these sales, while not extremely large, is, however, very gratifying to dealers who point out that the very fact that this type of car is selling again proves that people are beginning to buy the things they want without scrimping. Last year the costly cars were greatly admired but they did not sell.

EXPENSIVE CARS ATTRACT.

Of course the usual interest is being centered on the small and less expensive cars at the present show but the increased attention to the costly cars pleases exhibitors. They say that this indicates that the market for such cars is opening again and they anticipate a quick return to their former good business.

Greater numbers of women are attending the show this year than ever before, according to Chester I. Campbell, director of the huge exhibit. In addition to attending they are showing an intense interest not only in the cars themselves but also in their mechanical advantages and improvements.

NEEDED TONIC; TRIED KONJOLA

In Three Weeks New And Different Medicine Brought Strength And Energy To This Man

"Konjola certainly does all that is claimed for it." Times without number this has been said by those who, to their everlasting joy, put Konjola to the test and found it to be the very medicine they needed.

MR. FRANK COX

And Konjola has succeeded even in the most severe cases where all other medicines and treatments failed to bring more than mere temporary relief. Time and again Konjola has brought amazing relief in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. But find out about Konjola for yourself. Read what Mr. Frank C. Cox, R. F. D. No. 1, North Stamford, says about Konjola. Study his experience, then resolve to find out the whole story of Konjola from the Konjola Man at the Epstein drug store, 2-4 Scollay Square, Boston. Here is the statement of Mr. Cox in his own words:

"Konjola is a wonderful medicine. It proved its worth to me in three weeks. I had trouble with my head, and there was a constant ringing in my ears. I had headaches and after eating I felt exhausted and sleepy. I had no pep or ambition; spots appeared before my eyes, and I knew that I needed a good tonic to bring me back to health. In just three weeks Konjola had me on the right track. Headaches disappeared, dizziness and sleeplessness vanished. I eat heartily and never suffer any distress. Konjola surely is everything that is claimed for it."

In tens of thousands of cases Konjola has brought relief when given a fair trial of from six to eight weeks. All that is asked for Konjola is that it be given a chance —and Konjola welcomes any test no matter how severe.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's —Scollay Sq. (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where one and all may hear about Konjola and its merits.

HOUSE LEADERS BALK SENATE RELIEF BILL

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Seeking a means of killing, the Senate's $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross drouth relief, House administration leaders today planned hearings on the proposal before taking action.

They decided to have the Interior Department supply bids, to which the appropriation is attached as an amendment, referred today to the appropriations committee for investigation.

The committee would give Red Cross officials, who are opposed to the appropriation, an opportunity to testify and make recommendations on whether the amount voted by the Senate is necessary.

The Red Cross reported today $3,127,000 had been contributed to its fund of $10,000,000 for the relief of suffering in the drouth area. It said the progress of the fund was much slower than that of past campaigns.

A daily increase in the number of persons being cared for was reported, with the number standing at 561,624 at noon yesterday. In addition to the contributions received, the society had made $5,000,000 from its reserve fund available, bringing the total of funds for immediate use to more than $8,000,000.

Worcester Man Killed by Truck

Worcester, Jan. 22—George Atchison, 53, of 147 Main st., was fatally injured today when a truck, on which he was employed as helper, backed over him in an alley off 18 Church st. He died in a police ambulance. The driver, according to police, was Orion Cross, Chandler st. Atchison was unmarried and had relatives in Lowell, where he formerly lived.

Girl Reds' Crew Fat on Candy Diet in Jail

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 22 (AP)—Aileen Holmes, 23, of Massachusetts, and Isabel Huss, 20, of Belden, N. D., girl Communists convicted of desecrating the flag, were released today from the penitentiary after completing their sentences. Michel gained 15 pounds and Aileen 18 on candy and pastry sent by admirers.

Jay Walkers Opposed, How About Jay Drivers

Editor Boston American:

Now that there is a movement on hand to fight jay walkers, which is justifiable, let this fight go a step farther and fight jay auto drivers.

Again and again I have noticed auto drivers pass by traffic light stop signals when no officer is in sight. In fact, if anyone wants to confirm this, spend some time walking from Boylston up Tremont st. to Behoel st. Then go back to Bacon st to Washington st., then to Bromfield st. on to Summer and Winter sts.

If you will watch this area without the presence of traffic officers around noon, you will see jay auto drivers galore. A traffic light is little good in Boston during the busy hours without a traffic officer. These jay drivers can impose on traffic lights, but they cannot trifle with traffic officers. Jay walkers are no worse than jay auto drivers.

Married Women Best on Job, She Says

Editor Boston American:

Being one of your readers for a number of years I find your paper frank and impartial, which does a great deal for the benefit of the public. I would be grateful if it would allow me a little space regarding the question, "The layoff of married women."

If I should favor married women resigning their position, what about single women and girls that are never on time and sleepy on their work, with a headache and do not perform the satisfactory work, caused from the night before's "whoopee party?" The present economical depression has knocked at the door of many honest married men with their families. If a sober and reated married woman with family responsibilities can perform better work, wouldn't it be advisable to let them continue with their work.

Every intelligent firm should give some careful consideration for their business advantage.

G. O. P. Defeat Seen in Pre-Primary Law

Editor Boston American:

Amos Taylor, chairman of the Republican State Committee, is for a hand picked candidate pre-primary law, and has filed a bill for that purpose to bring back the boss ridden convention system.

The recent election in the defeat of the Republican candidates for public office, should have shown Mr. Taylor, that if he insists upon a pre-primary law, he is again welcoming defeat for the Republican party.

Why defeat the primary law by a pre-primary? To do so would be to nullify the interest and purpose of the primary law.

What fairness is there to all other candidates, when by a pre-primary convention they are not endorsed, they run independent as against the machine picked candidates. If Mr. Taylor is seeking defeat for his party then let him push a pre-primary law upon the people.

The party bosses want a pre-primary, and the people are satisfied with the present primary method of selecting candidates.

Leave well enough alone.

Writer Lauds Editorial on Greater Revere Beach

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial on expanding Revere Beach is timely. So many people from all over New England enjoy during the summer this attractive resort. In fact, it is the only sea air that many can command in this way.

There are places along the Massachusetts coast which should be open to the public, but they are covered by restrictions.

They are labelled, "No Trespass," which in my mind is undemocratic. The privileges of the coast in this state should be open to all who want to avail themselves of this opportunity.

Every inch of coast facing directly the ocean should be open to the public. It is coming to this within 10 years. I know I have stepped into a hornet's nest by this, but as the ocean belongs to no one, the coast along the ocean should have the same distinction.

Modification of Strict Baumes Law Urged

Editor Boston American:

Boston students of crime are alert for every practical agency to lessen it.

They are convinced that the Baumes Law, while one of the most important laws in this country today, should be repealed or modified.

These laws in many respects are not wholly bad, but in this particular, that they furnish fresh evidence that severity of punishment is not a deterrent to crime.

This has been proved. Six Chinamen were recently detained at Ellis Island. They had come all the way from China to get experience in Chicago gang warfare so that they could go back and try their knowledge on the home folk. The more laws we have in this country the more crime we have to match them.

The idea of Chinese coming all the way from their country to study in America the art o[illegible]der. Let us modify the Baumes Law. N. J. MANCHESTER.

Perennial Fanny, but How About Dahlias?

Editor Boston American:

There is a man in Long Beach, Cal., who has created a perennial pansy with the heart of a violet and the odor of violets. I would like to know if this same man, who aspired to be another Luther Burbank, has been successful grafting in the dahlia or iris. Your paper some time ago gave some information on this matter to me for which I am very grateful.

The man who is trying these frauks with nature is known as A. Garcia. He is certainly sending out points in flower culture from Garcia.

M. K. LEWIS.

Writer Asks, "What Is the Matter With Boston?

Editor Boston American:

What is the matter with Boston? A city worker was robbed and killed in a doorway in Shawmut ave., in broad daylight. A boy is kicked to death in school and the city pays $5000 to the mother. A girl of 17 years is killed by a truck while she waits to cross the street.

Three seized as gunmen. A man asks a young married woman of 22 years to his room. She jumps from sixth floor crying "Now, I know you do not love me."

Is the devil running Boston? Are Mrs. Peabody's words coming true about a wave of crime overtaking Boston since the repeal of the Baby Volstead Act?

What is the matter with Boston?

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

As a reader of the Boston Evening American, I have read a great deal about what some of the World War veterans have had to say about the so-called bonus question. There are only two ways open to the government to treat the veterans, pay at death, or now in cash.

I personally, as a real veteran, am in favor of a cash settlement now, due to the fact that it was I who suffered. Very few of the boys who served Over There will live 15 years more, dying like flies now. Second, any member of the World War who doesn't deem compensation or pension should get the bonus in cash at once, "lump sum." Others who have money coming regular from the government, payment in 12 instalments, monthly.

This would insure the veteran of a chance to hang onto his money. So I say this is nothing more or less than a call to arms of all war veterans. Let's hear from some more of you "rascals."

WILLIAM HAINES TO PLAY LEADING ROLE IN "DANCING PARTNERS"

M-G-M BUYS RIGHTS FOR FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22—Antiques may be William Haines' favorite hobby, but pictures are his chief occupation. Furthermore, he is going to have reason this coming year to be particularly interested in his movie lineup. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has just purchased "Dancing Partners," a David Belasco play which was adapted to the stage by Fanny and Frederick Hatton.

This play, originally put on in Germany, is by Alex Engle and Alfred Grunwald, and it was translated for the American stage. It is comedy and it gives Bill a chance to do the sort of thing for which he is especially gifted. "Dancing Partners" has a future production date, of course, since Bill at the moment is busy on a "Tailor Made Man." One thing at a time, please.

LYDELL PECK is back from Honolulu, but Janet Gaynor doesn't return until today. This Fox company has recently bought "Salomy Jane" for Janet. This inclines me to think that the experiment of having her play a girl who goes to the depths will not be repeated. Most of the critics objected to Miss Gaynor playing a woman who had deplorable vices in "The Man Who Came Back." What with "Daddy Long Legs," "Merely Mary Ann" and "Salomy Jane" on the list of pictures, for Janet it looks as if she will do the wistful, slavey type, the sort of role that brought Mary Pickford into fame, with perhaps a little more sophistication.

NITZI GREEN, who was frankly bored when Arthur Bioknis sent two doctors out to examine her for a million dollar insurance policy, is much more interested in a new play, "Let's Play King," bought for her by Paramount. Mitzi told one of the doctors who was testing her heart with a stethoscope that she knew well he couldn't hear any heart sounds and that he was a fake. I tried to prove that it was perfectly possible to hear a heart beat through ear phones but Mitzi was much more interested in lunch than any tiresome medical instruments. She is interested in Sinclair Lewis' story, "Let's Play King," however, now running in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Her mother read it to her and she assured Ben Schulberg it is just the kind of story her public would like to see her in.

ALL HOLLYWOOD has been talking about Lew Ayres leaving Universal. Lew had a little disagreement and he didn't care who knew it. In fact, he discussed his problems with several other companies and would have left pronto. However, the matter were smoothed over and Lew is now back at Universal City with the company that first discovered him and gave him his big chance in "All Quiet on the Western Front." In this one case which Jack Warner was questioned as to whether he had signed Young Ayres he said, "Absolutely." The Warner machinations seem to be more in the Paramount radius than any others.

BIG MONEY is rumored back of the George Washington picture and big plans. Alan Crosland will direct the life of George Washington and he can see just one actor for the part and that is John Barrymore. Barrymore was approached with the offer and it is said that he is not disinterested. I assume since Alan Crosland will direct and John Barrymore is the favorite candidate for the role of George Washington, Warners will probably release the picture. Belle Bennett is being considered for Martha Washington, the cutesy widow who married the father of his country.

McCORMACK IN GOOD VOICE

By MOSES SMITH

Returning to Boston after an absence of two years, John McCormack sang at Symphony Hall last night under the auspices of the Alumnae Association of Emmanuel College. An audience that took every seat, filled the stage and stood in the aisles heard him with the greatest cordiality, and caused him to add no less than eight songs to his announced program of fifteen.

The listener was again enthralled with the almost faultless singing of the great man. What other singer is there who can enunciate his English texts so clearly and at the same time produce an uninterrupted flow of tone? In his very first number, a Minnelied of the 15th century, he displayed a quality that was evident throughout the program—the ability to color his tones with various shades of emotion and retain always beauty of tone. For Mr. McCormack to sing beautifully is the first desideratum; but fortunately he does not find this inconsistent with being an able interpreter.

The singer was in excellent voice, though this voice seemed more and more a baritone in range, if not in quality. The higher tones did not come quite so easily, and occasionally the singer substituted a falsetto. But charmed by his graces one forgot such a detail, as well as the light character of the program, which was evidently made for the occasion, A McCormack could make a gutter ballad sound like great music.

BIG CONTRACT FOR MANZONI

Ten months ago Lino Manzoni landed in the United States unable to speak a word of English Yesterday the youthful actor received a five-year contract from J. Robert Rubin, an executive of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, calling for $1000 a week, effective at the conclusion of his tour of "Strictly Dishonorable" the Brock Pemberton comedy now at the Colonial.

A week ago Mr. Manzoni went to the studio for voice and screen tests. They were so successful he will be assigned to playing the Ramon Novarro and John Gilbert roles in Italian and French versions.

MOORE COMING NEXT MONTH

"Ireland's Traveling Ambassador," Emmett Moore, and his lads and colleens from the Emerald Isle, together with a motion picture titled "Hills of Erin," will appear in Boston early next month. Mr. Moore returned from Ireland two days ago, after appearing in Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Galway, Belfast and London; also Liverpool, Manchester and Glasgow.

He has completed arrangements for an "Irish Hollywood," where interesting stories of Irish life will be filmed. It will be known as a combination amusement center and picture colony. This Irish minstrel has founded The Emmett Moore Film Co.

'CAESAR' FILM AT KEITH'S

"Little Caesar," talking picture which is making box office history, starts its New England premiere engagement with a midnight performance tonight at RKO Keith's. It is presented on the third of the special features during January, RKO's anniversary month.

The story of "Little Caesar," which is an adaptation of the best-seller novel of the same name by W. R. Burnett, concerns one Rico Bandello ("Little Caesar"), played by Edward G. Robinson, stage star, who has a yearning for bigger and better things in banditry, and his pal, Joe Massara, portrayed by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

The rise of Rico, his sinister willingness to kill, his inordinate vanity, his toppling over of one boss after another and the end of Rico, the manner in which he is trapped both by his own effrontery and his own weakness are pictured in this film.

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

BY THE HELP of its title, "Illicit" may hurdle its way into motion picture prominence as a box office success. This screening of the Edith Fitzgerald-Robert Riskin stage play is the new feature for the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown, having been given its first showings yesterday. Barbara Stanwyck, who did splendidly in "Ladies of Leisure," is its star.

In the story Miss Stanwyck is in love with James Rennie, but is unwilling to be tied to him in wedlock. She prefers a sort of public arrangement. In time their names are linked up in unconventional episodes, and the ears of Mr. Rennie's kin tingle; so Miss Stanwyck at last agrees to marriage. Alack and alas! they drift apart; the wife sets up a home all by herself. Here Ricardo Cortez, a discarded suitor, visits her; so does her husband. Green-eyed jealousy scuds him into the arms of Natalie Moorhead; but just before the inevitable steamship sails, he repents and hurries off to lay his heart bare to the wife. . . . "And they live happily ever afterward"!

Rare comedy is injected into the tale by that master mind, Charlie Butterworth, who keeps the audience on a tiptoe of amusement, waiting for his appearance. Footlight fans will remember his screamingly funny lines in "Sweet Adeline"; he is just as clever in "Illicit," only there is not as much of him in the photoplay. Really he steals the show; proving that some producer should seize upon his cheap and star him in a rollicking comedy to a piling up of the profits with a sure-fire hit.

At times Miss Stanwyck is very good. Acting of the others tends to make the piece too heavy. Mr. Rennie has particularly boomboru, and never once suggesting by word or deed that he and Miss Stanwyck can ever live happily together.

We failed to find anything of startling nature in "Illicit," but do admit that Miss Stanwyck wears exquisite gowns, smartly styled, inclusive of an "undie" the like of which we have hitherto not seen. For all this "Illicit" may turn in the sheckels at the box office.

DARLING TWINS

SCOLLAY PATRONS are showering applause on the Darling Twins, Sylvia and Harriett, featured in the Kvergiades Night Club show, big stage attraction at this popular playhouse. Besides appearing in four Publix units, the Darling Twins have been featured in musical comedy productions and on the major vaudeville circuits. They last appeared in Boston in George White's "Flying High."

Dance Contest Every Night at Bowdoin Sq

Beginning today, to run for the remainder of this week, the Bowdoin Square offers a new picture program coupled with seven acts of vaudeville. Danny Duggan's dance contest takes place every night. Otis Skinner will be seen in his film success, "Kismet." Another picture is "One Night At Susie's," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Billie Dove and Helen Ware. There will also be a continuation of "The Indians are Coming." Bargain night comes tomorrow.

Lord Moray	James Carew
Malcolm Graeme	Nadine Meredith
Margaret	Hedda Hartwell
Allan Bayne	Lee Dryden
Douglas	Douglas Payne

"THE LADY OF THE LAKE" and "Lost Gods" make up another classy program for the Screen Guild at the Repertory. A wondrous charm inspirits the first, while "Lost Gods" has the value of being intensely interesting.

For films fans the return of Percy Marmont is an item of more than passing note. This fine player of the old days is seen in "The Lady of the Lake," which is a beautifully done picturization of the Walter Scott poem. Here is atmosphere of the best kind, the magnificent landscapes of Scotland furnish the background. The acting is excellent. One is thrilled by the skirling of the pipes, and the gorgeous scenery is inspiring.

"Lost Gods," which is heard as well as seen, is looked upon as a film. It records the findings of explorations, headed by the famous Count de Perork, into the lost civilizations of Carthage, Utica and Libya.

The Repertory has been putting on sterling programs each week since its reopening as Guild auspices. It competes with no other motion picture theater, for it offers only pictures made abroad, which would not otherwise be available for most movie patrons. We have noted that audiences were responsive to the merit and appeal of these good films which should insure that the Repertory is worth patronage on one's visiting list.

Luncheonfor Miss Rowe Today

Mr. and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe Present Daughter at Fete in Brookline Home

BLUE CREPE BANDED with mink adorns the popular Eleanor Livingston Rowe, debûtante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe, when she makes her formal bow at a luncheon given by her parents today at their home on Mason st., Brookline. Mrs. Rowe is wearing black velvet and the table and house decorations are pink roses. Early in December, Miss Rowe was presented to New York society by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert E. Livingston, at a tea and she has journeyed to and from that city several times to attend other social affairs. A dinner at the St. Regis was given in her honor on New Year's Eve.

MANY OF THE SEASON'S most popular debutantes are attending the luncheon and several of the girls who came out last year, Miss Katherine Lee Burrage, Miss Alice Voss Burrage, Miss Caroline Hunnewell, Miss Kitty Talbot, Miss Ellen de Normandie, Miss Elizabeth Scott, who leaves Friday for an extended European tour, Miss Susan Robins, Miss Sydney Sherburne, Miss Lydia Draper, Miss Elizabeth Wells, Miss Barbara Richardson, Miss Priscilla Simonds, Miss Constance Howe, Miss Anne Sutton, Miss Mabel Bell, Miss Harriet Fuller, Miss Elisabeth Harding, Miss Gretchen Bremer, Miss Mary McElwain, Miss Isabella Grandin and Mrs. Grafton Smith (Janice Vaughan). Miss Rowe was elected to provisional membership in the Junior League.

MRS. GEORGE H. SWIFT, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wright Fabyan and Francis W. Fabyan, Jr., have been stopping at the St. Regis in New York.

Merrill Griswolds to Give Dinner for Miss Jean Read

MR. AND MRS. MERRILL GRISWOLD of Marlborough st are giving a dinner for Miss Jean Read, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Read of Cambridge, before the next Brattle Hall dance.

MRS. JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN of 181 Commonwealth ave. will entertain at a dinner party on February 6 for Miss Betty Cram, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram of Mt. Vernon st.

ON BOARD THE WHITE STAR LINER HOMERIC, due in New York today from Southampton and Cherbourg, is Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, who is bringing over his 1440 h. p. Campbell-Napier car, The Bluebird, to attempt to beat the late Sir Henry Seagraves' record of 231 miles per hour made at Daytona last year. Also arriving on the Homeric are Lord St. Leonards, Lady Green Price, Lady Peek, A. Neiville Lewis, artist, and Andrew Anderson of Perth, Scotland, coming here to arrange for the leasing of shooting lodges in Great Britain for several prominent Americans.

MR. GEORGE WELLS, whose address is the Tennis and Racquet Club, Miss Magdelena Greenslet, post-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris Greenslet, and Mr. Robert Hallowell, Jr., of Milton, are among the smart young set who have "come out" and are still "going."

Many Aided by Welfare Chest

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader Reports More Than 1500 Persons Have Sought Aid

By NANCY BREWSTER

More than 1500 persons have applied for aid at the headquarters of the Massachusetts Welfare Chest so far this month, according to a report issued by the chairman, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, today.

Through these 1500 persons, it is estimated that assistance was given in various ways to close to 5000 persons, since many applied not only for themselves but for aid for members of their families.

In giving out clothing donations to applicants, the chest is backed up by verifications of the applicant's need through representatives of the Boston social service agencies.

As head of the chest committee, Mrs. Schrader, who is also president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, reports that "thousands of dollars' worth of clothing contributed have been distributed.

The recent appeal for men's shoes, she reports, brought a quick response. But more clothes of all kinds are needed daily to meet the demands of those who apply every day at the chest headquarters at 90 St. James ave., Boston.

Mrs. Danforth to Hold Study Groups for Voters' League

Mrs. Charles H. Danforth, chairman of the immigration and naturalization committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, plans a study group for league members, to be held the fourth Thursday of each month, beginning today at 10:30 a. m. at 3 Joy st.

An observation trip to the division of Americanization and immigration; information about the latest developments; current legislation, and helpful discussion of perplexing questions are to be included in the study.

Women interested in joining the group, whether league members or not, are invited to send their names to the Boston League office.

Mrs. Tillinghast to Address Members of N.E. Women's Club

At the regular meeting of the New England Women's Club next Monday in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Kenmore, the work committee, with Mrs. George G. Jenkins as chairman, will present Mrs. Anna Tillinghast, U. S. immigration commissioner for New England, who will relate "Life Stories From the Immigration Station."

For the social hour to follow, Mrs. Anthony G. Schmelzer and Miss Alice Cheney are to be hostesses.

At 1 p. m. the literature class will meet with Miss Ella M. Horne, who will review "The Deepening Stream," by Dorothy Canfield.

The art group will meet next Wednesday at the club rooms at 2:30, with Mrs. William A. Rolfe as the leader.

The annual celebrity breakfast of the League of American Pen Women will take place next Monday at the Hotel Statler, at 1 p. m.

Evening Gown Gives Pajama Effect

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

AMIDST FRILLIER and frothier evening clothes, an almost severely tailored costume appears—one with amazing chic and sophistication. Such an one is pictured. The skirt portion is of dull black silk crepe, a double circular cut giving the effect of wide pajamas, extending to girdle top in two points at high waistline, tying in sash, lined in royal blue. The top is ivory toned satin, s draped, round neckline in front, the back decolletage very low, and finished in two pointed revers. The earrings and bracelets are of brilliants. Long white gloves are worn, and the black satin slippers continue the long line of the skirt.

* * *

THE EVENING mode is changing subtly—there is less fluff and glitter.

* * *

A WHITE satin gown, with a skirt shirred in scalloped effect, seen recently, was worn with but a single band of rhinestones at the nape of the neck of the wearer, folding back her blonde curls. Another woman in white taffeta falling in soft petals about her feet had no jewelry, but her costume was accented with short black suede gloves and a black chiffon handkerchief. A white lace dress with nothing but a narrow shoulder strap of black velvet ribbon was worn without jewels.

* * *

WHITE AGAINST color, and color against white with an occasional note of black seems to be the rule for smart evening wear. Where black has been almost a rule in evening wraps, a wine-colored velvet wrap seen recently was very distinctive.

* * *

RICHNESS of fabric is an outstanding feature of the new evening mode—thus the importance of stiff satins. Tiered dresses are especially effective when made of satin, and as fashion importance attaches itself to bright colors as well as to white and delicate tints, one can satisfy her color preference without sacrificing smartness.

* * *

SAPPHIRE IS a new blue entry to watch. It may possibly get the edge on turquoise, as it is equally as charming a color for contrast effects. It has a definite "aliveness."

* * *

WHAT WITH woolen frocks so deservedly popular you may have wondered whether the vogue could go any further. In any case you will be interested in news of an evening frock of broadcloth with low decolletage that has been designed by a Paris couturier. The frock is simple in design and is worn with a matching coat. White flowers are worn with it.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

Taking the form of a book review, the titles of some 35 books will be characterized and represented in costume by club members.

Mrs. Helen Alden Woodworth, of Brookline, has charge of the tickets and is chairman of the general arrangements, costumes, casting, coaching, stage effects with Mrs. Lillian Walsh in charge of the lighting.

Mrs. C. Antoinette Wood, state vice-president, who presented the tercentenary pageant, "Great Women in History," is writing couplets and verses applicable to each participant. Mrs. M. H. Gulesian has charge of the music.

Mass. Mother Knew Best

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The experience of Mrs. Vernon McGregor, 15 Maplewood Street, Boston, is a typical one. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Kenneth and Leonard since they were just tiny babies. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy, well in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I know best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

Physicians endorse the use of pure vegetable California Fig Syrup when bad breath, coated tongue, dullness, feverishness, listlessness, etc., show a child's bowels are in need of help. Weak stomach and bowels are toned by its gentle aid; appetite increased; digestion and assimilation are so assisted that weak, undernourished children quickly improve in weight, strength and energy.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. All druggists have it.

'RED' CHARGE IS HURLED AT HEARING

A hearing before the legislative committee on education heard ended in a row today following charges that some of the speakers were Communists.

The hearing was on the bill of Armand C. Bang of Newton to allow students in public schools and colleges supported in whole or in part by public funds to decline military instruction on grounds of conscientious objection.

A large delegation of pacifists appeared in favor of the resolve and when they had concluded presentation of their views, James F. Burns of Commonwealth ave Back Bay, arose in opposition.

Burns referred to some of the previous speakers as Communists and said that at least one of the organizations represented as favoring the bill had been endorsed by the Young Communists' International.

Arthur E. White, a Harvard student and former major in the R. O. T. C., who had spoken in favor of the bill, interrupted Burns.

"What has that book got to do with this hearing?" he demanded.

"It has a lot to do with it," shouted Burns. "One of the organizations mentioned in this book is the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom which was placed on record at this hearing in favor of the bill."

The Harvard student, speaking for the bill, said his experience in the R. O. T. C. had impressed him with the belief that systematic effort is being made to impress R. O. T. C. boys with the idea that war is inevitable and possibly desirous.

IN 1851, THE COMMON, as now, was the forum for the newest political and economic movements. This picture shows Wendell Phillips, great anti-slavery advocate addressing crowd on the steps of the Common opposite the State House and about where the Shaw monument now stands. The meeting had been called for the State House steps, but the authorities stopped that so the meeting adjourned to the Common. GOODWIN RAPS ALIEN HELP ON STATE JOBS

Charging that aliens are occupying high salaried positions in state institutions while citizens of the Commonwealth qualified to do the work remain idle, Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, today attacked Dr. George M. Kline, commissioner of the Department of Mental Diseases.

Goodwin appeared at a State House hearing on several bills relating to mandatory preference of citizens by employers before the House committee on public service.

"I am reliably informed that Dr. Kline advertises as far west as Kansas for help in our state institutions," Goodwin said, "while thousands of unemployed in this state are ready to take the jobs.

DRAWING GOOD PAY

"Perhaps the reason for this is that people from far away places will take what they can get in the matter of wages and whose complaints of conditions under which they work do not interest the citizens of Massachusetts.

"A citizen of Manitoba draws a salary in one of our State institutions of $3500 per year and found. His wife, also a citizen of Manitoba, has a position in the same place at a salary of $2000 per year and found. They do not intend to become citizens and will go back to Manitoba after they have saved enough money to retire.

"In Dr. Kline's department there are 154 men drawing good pay and 102 of them graduated from schools outside of the state. And 27 of them are graduates of foreign schools.

WILL WITNESS AIDS EX-WIFE OF HASTINGS

"Did he will me [illegible]? I don't want to destroy the only decent act I ever did."

Quoted as a statement of Samuel B. Hastings, wealthy Lexington sportsman, just before he committed suicide in 1925, it was offered in testimony today in the fight of Mrs. Hazel Somers, Hastings' divorced wife, for a bequest of $10,000 in Hastings' will.

Mrs. Marion Collier, sister of Mrs. Somers, quoted the statement in Middlesex court today and said Hastings pleaded with her to find his will and preserve it. Mrs. Somers' petition is for admittance of a copy of the will, the original having been burned by Hastings three days before his death.

PAY CUT 10 P. C. IN AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP)—The full arbitration court here today ordered a reduction of ten per cent basic wages for the year dating from Feb. 2 as a measure of national emergency to combat the economic depression.

The judgment affects the Victorian, South Australian, and Tasmanian railway services, the Australian Workers Union, timber workers, clerks, engineers, tramway employes, carpenters, painters, dockers, the Merchant service guild and others.

The Commonwealth statistician today described the cut as the first step toward a reduction of £30,000,000 in national salary costs.

He said another heavy reduction in the basic wage would occur almost immediately after the cost of living figures for the last three months is issued tomorrow.

OLD GOLD CAPTURES CHICAGO IN ONE AFTERNOON

CHICAGO POLICE HALT while Ripley gets the real dope on cigarette tastes from Chicago's husky army of gangland fighters. OLDGOLD was their choice.

"GUM-KING" WRIGLEY, LAWRENCE WHITING, LEON MANDEL, II, and Rip himself making a taste-test in Mr. Wrigley's office in the famous Wrigley Building on Michigan Boulevard.

WINDY CITY GIVES O. Gs. BIG PLURALITY IN RIPLEY'S NEWEST CIGARETTE TASTE-TEST

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

It didn't take Chicago long to decide which cigarette it likes best. I got the answer in six hours.

I arrived at the Windy City at high noon . . . with a supply of the four leading brands of cigarettes . . . masked with black bands to conceal the names.

Before the close of the afternoon I had given the "taste-test" to every rank and file in the town . . . from the cattle herders at the stock-yards to the traders in the pit . . . from the movie fans in the loop to the gang-fighters of the police force.

And as usual, O. G. ran away with the vote.

Let me repeat, I'm not out to prove OLD GOLD'S case. I'm out to get and print the facts . . . as I do on all my "Believe it or not's."

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

Strange Dark Woman Calls at Doctor's Office

How the Story Started

Geraldine Foster, a very attractive young reception clerk in the Washington sq. office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell, "Laughing Doctor," vanished from her Morningside Heights apartment in The Esplanade on the night before Christmas. Her roommate, Betty Canfield, reported her disappearance to police three days after Christmas and appealed directly to Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt for aid. He starts the police on the trail and goes himself to the apartment to search and question Betty. Torn letter of Geraldine's found in her desk interests Colt. Then he visits Dr. Maskell.

Now Go On

CHAPTER 6

Purse Found

"BETTER TELL me everything," Thatcher Colt said drily.

"I was holding Dorie by the hand, and we were both laughing, as I came through the front door into the hallway out there, just outside the door to this office. But as I stepped into the hallway, I noticed a woman standing in front of my office door. The hall-lamp was not burning and I could see her only indistinctly. But I did make out that she was dressed in a dark coat, with the collar turned up, and that she stood so that her face was turned away from us.

Dark Woman

"I spoke to her and asked her if she wanted to see the doctor. She answered me by demanding to know why I did not keep some one in the office while I was away. I said there was a young lady inside and the strange woman then insisted that she had been ringing for 15 minutes and yet no one had opened the door. I thought this was very peculiar, for Geraldine was always most prompt and punctual about her duties.

"I tried the door and to my surprise it was locked. I opened the door with my key and walked in. Doris followed me and so, without a word, did this woman. There were no lights on in my office and I called out for Geraldine. No answer. Then, to my astonishment, the strange woman pushed past me, without asking my permission, and walked through this reception room, into my consultation room yonder.

"Of course I followed her, but before I reached her side, she had gone on farther and opened the rear door and looked into the little room at the back. That, too, was empty. I then asked her, rather peremptorily, what she was looking for, but she bowed her chin in the collar of her coat, half-closed her eyes and said she was too late.

"Then she turned into leave. I tried to detain her, but she rushed past me, out into the hallway. I followed her, quite startled at her extraordinary behavior, and then I noticed [illegible] before my door. She got into it and drove away.

"You didn't notice the license number on the taxi, I suppose?" asked Thatcher Colt.

Doctor Maskell shook his head.

"And that," said Doctor Maskell soberly, "is all that I know about it, except that I was inclined to think that Geraldine had played me a rather shabby trick—recently she has not been herself; talked about having royal blood in her veins—but, confess, I don't know what to think."

"You have no idea who the woman was?"

"No."

"Was she young or old?"

Middle Age

"I had the impression that she was around middle age."

"It could not have been Geraldine herself?"

"Good Lord, no!"

Thatcher Colt emptied the dottle from his pipe into an ash-tray and began refilling the bowl.

"Queer," he said musingly. "That mysterious lady might have been just a wandering person with a disorderly mind. On the other hand, she may yet prove to be of supreme importance in this case."

"Yes, certainly," agreed Doctor Maskell.

"I shall take a look through your establishment. Mind?" asked Thatcher Colt.

"Do you think Geraldine is still here?" asked the doctor, opening wide his eyes.

Without answering, the police commissioner rose and strode through the two rooms to the door at the back and through that into the rear room. I followed him, with Dr. Maskell marching at my heels. The somber, brown eyes of Thatcher Colt were turning from one object to another in the clutter of stored material in that last room of the suite. Bending down, he fingered

POLICE ADMIT 'IRREGULARITIES' AT TEST

Ely Willing to Wait for Jobless Fund

Vet Parted From His Pal

Illness Hits War Veteran and Canine Pal Together

Talk about tough luck—here's a hero dog and his master who got more than their share all at one time.

Both are in hospital today, worrying about each other, after many thrilling adventures together in Hawaii.

Out in Angell Memorial Hospital, "Bucky" the dog is waging a losing fight with a disease rare in dogs. A pal to patients is [illegible] who has nursed [illegible] cases of Scarlet Fever, is recovering from an operation in the Chelsea Naval Hospital.

X-RAY ONLY HOPE

The only human aid that may be given "Bucky" is X-ray treatment for which special equipment is required and which is very dangerous both to the operator and to the patient.

Bucky has refused to eat since he was brought to the hospital, although he always has a friendly wag for the doctors and attendants that seek to coax his appetite.

He is a cross between an Airedale and a pit bull, the breed used for hunting pumas in Arizona hills, although Bucky was born in Honolulu and spent his puppyhood in the Kilauea volcano region in the Hawaiian National Park.

END OF CHILDREN

According to his master, a World War veteran and a Ranger-naturalist [illegible] Bucky is the only [illegible] dog companion for the past three years.

'GO SLOW' IS WARNING BY SHATTUCK

Tells Chairman Jones What Law Requires Regarding Money State Spends

Governor Ely today made it plain that he does not require immediate action on his request for an emergency unemployment fund of $1,000,000.

In a formal statement issued the Governor said

"There has been considerable discussion in reference to the suggested appropriation of $1,000,000 as an emergency fund for the relief of unemployment. I believe the committee is fully aware of my intention in regard to this suggested appropriation, and that we do not require immediate action upon this recommendation, but will advise the committee from time to time, as occasion requires."

TO SLOW, SAYS SHATTUCK

Co-incident with the issuance of the statement by the Governor, former Rep. Henry L. Shattuck of Boston, made public a letter which he sent today to Chairman Arthur W. Jones of the House Ways and Means committee, advising the committee to go slow in approving any such allotment of funds.

He argued that under the constitution the contemplated appropriation should be itemized and included in the budget. Any legislation based on "confidence in a particular official," Shattuck contended, would be "bad legislation" and would set up a precedent that would come back to plague the committee and its successors

WHAT LAW REQUIRES.

"Within less than a week," Shattuck wrote, "the Governor, under the constitution, will be required to recommend to the General Court a budget which shall contain a statement of all proposed expenditures of the Commonwealth for the fiscal year, including those already authorized by law, and of all taxes, revenues, loans and other means by which such expenditures shall be defrayed.

"It will be observed that the constitution calls for a complete program of revenue and expenditure for the current year. Further and unanimous recommended expenditures are to be given and the means by which the expenditures are to be defrayed are to be stated or recommended.

"BAD LEGISLATION"

"Yet, only a week before this program is to be submitted, the governor has asked for a grant of $1,000,000 for undisclosed purposes. If he has no plan for expending this money, as is apparently the case, no time will be lost by failure to act now and by waiting until the complete budget program is submitted, pursuant to the constitution, on or before Wednesday of next week.

"Legislation based on the discretion of whether you have confidence in a particular official, for the time being in office, is bad legislation.

"Remember that under the constitution 'the executive shall never exercise the legislative and judicial powers or either of them' to the end that the government of the commonwealth may be 'a government of laws and not of men.'"

N. E. OFFICIALS IN BATTLE OVER WARD BAKING CO. CONTROL

RIVAL GROUPS READY FOR 'SHOWDOWN'

Local Head Hints at Plan to Organize "Monopoly in Foodstuffs"

A battle for financial control of the Ward Baking Co., which has one of its largest plants in Cambridge, comes to a "show down" next Monday when those seeking to gain control will attempt to hold a special stock holders' meeting at Baltimore.

If these interests assume control it will mean virtu l elimination of New England men in the manage ment, according to a statement to day by K. G. Macdonald, assistant to the president of the company and in charge at Cambridge

Ignoring the call for a special meeting, which was issued by two directors who have declared their allegiance to the interests seeking control, Chairman William C Evans of the board of directors has announced a special stock holders' meeting for Feb. 12

HINT AT 'MONOPOLY'

Present officials of the company have been charged with mismanagement in a court suit instituted in New York, where it is alleged by Maurice B. Keady, son-in-law of Robert Ward, founder of the company, that the corporation's funds were illegally used to purchase preferred stocks and maintain a fictitious market for this stock

MacDonald in his statement charges that if the new interests gain the upper hand stockholders and public would suffer thereby, formation of a gigantic monoply in foodstuffs.

The proposed new management would be headed by George K. Morrow, chairman of the Gold Dust Corporation. He and his associates claim to have sufficient proxies to oust the present officials and directors.

"Measures introduced in the Senate by Senators Wagner, New York Democrat, and Brookhart, Iowa Republican, which resulted in formation of a committee and voting of $15,000 to inquire into possible collusion among large food interests, came none too soon," said Macdonald

WOULD BALK PROFITS.

"Recent developments in the battle for control of the Ward Baking Co. appear to disclose a new wrinkle in the merger game —a plan of exercising control of a corporation to the exclusive advantage of the controlling interests, without investment.

"Interests now seeking control are known already to control flour mills, sugar companies and dairy products companies. With these interests in control, purchases of ingredients by the company could be at prices dictated by them.

"Increases made in the prices of these ingredients would drain from the treasury of the baking company into the coffers of these other interests several million dollars annually. It would be impossible for the company to show a profit.

"This would take their dividends away from the stockholders, but it would not hurt the controlling interests, whose plan is to get control through solicitation of proxies, not through investment in the company.

KEEP PRICES HIGH

"Moreover, the cost records of the company would show figures that on their face would justify a high level of prices for bread products, and any investigating body would find it extremely difficult to establish what are true costs and fair selling prices."

The Ward Baking Company is a Maryland corporation and has outstanding 80,000 shares of Class A common stock 500,000 shares of Class B common and 31 st shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred The common is of no pa. value and the preferred a par $10. The president is Ralph S. Kent of New York

GOLDENBERG'S GUILTY PLEA ACCEPTED

Action on Slayer of Lillian Franks Recall's Richeson Case of 20 Years Ago

For the first time in 20 years, a Massachusetts court today accepted a plea of guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree.

Abraham Goldenberg, 22, of Lorna st., Mattapan, who shot and killed his sweetheart, Lillian Franks of Malden, in Franklin field two weeks ago, admitted his guilt in a plea before Judge Harold B. Williams in Superior Court this morning

Judge Williams accepted the plea "for the present."

Since the slaying Goldenberg had been indicted by Suffolk county grand jury, and it was on that indictment, for murder in the first degree, that he was arraigned, withouhan attorney

"GUILTY" HE ANSWERS

While Goldenberg, apparently calm, stood in the prisoner's dock in the second session, Clerk Julian Serack read the indictment and asked

"What do you say to this indictment? Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," said the youth.

"Have you counsel, Mr. Goldenberg?" Judge Williams asked.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick Sheehan interrupted to say

"I just asked him and he said he didn't want counsel. He made a confession.

RECALLS RICHESON CASE

The youth was remanded to Charles st. jail without bail. The indictment charges that he assaulted and beat Miss Franks as well as shooting her

The last time a plea of guilty to first degree murder was accepted in this State was when the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson admitted his guilt by plea, to the murder of Avis Linnel, by poisoning. He was sentenced to die in the electric chair and did so after mutilating himself while awaiting execution

Unloading Rum Cargo

PLOT TO SLASH WAGES CHARGED

Out-of-state contractors are being given preference in state construction jobs in Massachusetts and taking advantage of unemployment to cut wage scales and violate labor laws, the House committee on public service was told today.

The charges were made at a hearing on a bill to amend labor laws so standard wages would be paid workers on both state and municipal construction

Rep. James E. Warner of Lawrence, who with Rep. Charles A. Kelley of Worcester, presented the bill, said that contractors on state jobs were paying laborers as low as 30 cents an hour as compared to 50 cent paid for the same class of work by municipalities

Rep. Otis of Pittsfield said that an outside contractor building a state road in the western part of Massachusetts had kept the men working from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., although the job was not an emergency one

Robert J. Watts of the State Federation of Labor said the old-time contractors were glad to pay a living wage are being ignored in the award of state contracts.

29TH ARREST IN AUTO CASES

Edward Gately of Main st., Hudson, a baker, was arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court on a secret indictment today as the 29th arrested in the investigation of automobile accident insurance frauds in Middlesex county

He was charged with conspiracy to defraud the Travelers Insurance Co. the American Employers Insurance Co and the Employers Liability Assurance Corp., Ltd

After a plea of not guilty he was held for the grand jury in bonds of $5,000

DOAK URGES LABOR AND INDUSTRY UNITE TO END DEPRESSION

CONFERENCE OF LEADERS ADVOCATED

Open and Above Board Proper Way of Solving Problem, He Says

Secretary [illegible] N. Doak today advocated an "open and above board" conference of labor and industry as the best means of lifting the United States out of the period of depression.

Speaking before leaders of State and city at a breakfast in the Hotel Statler, Secretary Doak declared the present depression is only temporary and must pass away.

"We, and when I say we I mean the employer and the employe, must look to the future with confidence and optimism that has always characterized the American people in dealing with such affairs," Secretary Doak said.

"We have reached a point where we can solve economic, social and political problems without difficulty. But we must have confidence. The United States is far better off than most European countries.

HOW TO SOLVE PROBLEM

"I advocate an open and above-board conference of the heads of labor and industry as the best means of solving our present problem."

Regarding racketeering, he said:

"All kinds of solutions have been offered, some of them wildeyed in theory, but it is my honest opinion that the only way to cleanse the country of racketeering is by restricting immigration.

"I have nothing against foreigners in general, but we must have legislation which will properly protect our citizens against these trouble-making aliens, who prowl and fight and enter racketeering.

"There have no place in the United States. [illegible] the hundred [illegible] highest official of [illegible] must assist in drying [illegible] the country."

C. N. Woodward, assistant to the general manager of the railroad, R. D. Fitzmaurice, general superintendent of the Eastern Division, and Robert O'Hanley, superintendent of the Midland Division of the N. Y. N. H. & H., and in whose office at the South Station the hearing is being held, represented the railroad.

3 Held in Attack on Lynn Police

Three Lynn men who surrendered last night while police were combing that city for them, were held for trial when arraigned today in Lynn district court on charges arising from the melee on Summer st., Lynn, Tuesday night where two Swampscott officers rescued a woman from "mashers."

The defendants are Gaetano Gangi, 32, of Alley st., charged with assault and battery on Mrs. Hazel Whipple of Friend st. pl., and Police Chief Walter Reeves of Swampscott; Philip Anchor 21, of Wheeler st., charged with assault and battery on Patrolman Herbert Frazier of Swampscott, and Joseph Merlino, 21, of Tremont st., also charged with attacking Frazier.

Gangi was held in $1000 bail and the others in $500 each for a hearing on Feb. 8.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

A LITTLE TRUTH ABOUT DEAR OLD WRESTLING GAME

IN THE ROPED SQUARE no dethroned world's heavyweight champion ever regained his crown. On the wrestling mat it is a different thing. Titles are juggled back and forth. Strangler Lewis, if we recollect rightly, won and lost the world's wrestling crown several times. Hence there is considerable interest in tonight's wrestling duel between the former Dartmouth collegian, Gus Sonnenberg, and the ex-St. Louis University student, Lee Wykoff, for Sonnenberg expects to use the young giant from the Show Me State as a stepping stone leading back to the world's heavyweight wrestling throne. Lee may have other ideas.

Twenty-three months after ... numbers won the crown from Strangler Lewis, Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, of the ex-Michigan football star, Gus now [illegible] that if he can get Gus to get the mat again he will regain the crown. Sonnenberg claims condition, or rather lack of it, cost him the crown, and that he was stale and war-worn from too long and strenuous a campaign when the Wolverine pinned his shoulders to the mat.

Wrestling doesn't belong in the same sports category as boxing. Grappling is more of an entertainment than a sport.

Many of the matches are opponent vs. opponent. Where a champion battles contests three or four times a year, and, as far as heavyweights are concerned, not even that often a champion wrestler ofttimes is billed as "defend his title" three or four times a week. Often he works across country in one night stands like theatrical troupers.

So athletic in fact on the level matches could compete as often as do the wrestlers without cracking and going to pieces in a few weeks' time.

An "on the level" wrestling match seldom is fast or interesting. In "straight" matches wrestlers are afraid to take a chance on a fluke hold and pull, pull, haul and maul for long periods of time without going to the mat. Even a fixed match, or in one where a champion is contesting with a man who does not class with him, all kinds of holds are taken and broken and excitement is kept at fever heat.

WRESTLER MUST BE GOOD ACTOR

A WRESTLING champion as to be a good actor as well as a wrestler.

Students of the art of wrestling get many good laughs on how easily the mat game is described.

The wrestling fan is the queerest of "bugs." His either becomes hypnotized or is so rabid a fan that he hypnotizes himself into believing black is white.

Your humble correspondent himself, must be something of a bug, because he gets a big thrill out of watches, even when he sees wrestlers break" unbreakable holds and otherwise discort themselves in ways that show they are entertaining, not competing. To us the average wrestling match is but one than a burlesque show. We cannot away with such antics. Wrestling moves in waves and cycles.

Just now it is on the crest of a wave of counter-hold popularity.

Time was when a wrestler put the boxers. Packed houses stood the patrons while either they left the room. The wrestlers were not the coffers of the promoters on a golden stream.

The public is so enthusiastic over wrestling that two great wrestling "drawing cards" are doing a tremendous business.

The two grappling "figures" are in a death grapple for complete monopoly of the mat game. All the time during the trail are that neither will win. But the two combatants will keep on cutting each other's throats as long as the present enthusiasm in grappling keeps up. When the ebb tide sets in they will not be so scrappy.

One of the wrestling combines is [illegible] headed by Jack Curley, although we are told that Londos is the real boss. Ray Fabiani, the Boston Garden wrestling promoter, is a member of the Curley combine.

The other wrestling "trust" is headed by Billy Sandow. Paul Bowser, the man who put wrestling on the map here in Boston and is keeping it there, is a member of the Sandow group.

NOW POACHING ON OTHER'S PRESERVES

UNTIL THE LAST 12 months the two wrestling combines operated in different sectors. Now they are poaching on each other's preserves.

The Curley group succeeded in working Ray Fabiani into Boston, which "belonged" to Paul Bowser of the Sandow forces. The Sandow group invaded Fabiani's Philadelphia stamping ground. The two combines are scrapping over the New York wrestling bone, plus [illegible].

In the meantime the public is getting plenty of wrestling and is going to it like ducks to water and flies to the molasses barrel.

This apparently is the Golden Age of wrestling.

The wrestling promoters are making hay while the sun shines. Gus Sonnenberg, we are told

MALONEY AND RISKO BOUT OFF AGAIN

By RINGSIDE

Jim Maloney will not enter a ring until he faces Primo Carnera in a 10-round bout at the Miami Beach Kennel Track, Miami Beach, Fla., on March 5.

The official announcement from the Boston Garden that the off postponed Maloney-Risko match is definitely off confirms the Boston Evening American's story of last week to this effect.

When it was learned that Maloney and Jim Carnera in boxing [illegible] about the information that the Maloney-Risko bout would [illegible] Garden.

Various reasons have been given as to why Maloney's meeting with Risko has been postponed again, but the real one is that it is not good business policy for a boxer to risk defeat or injury when he has a match on which will net him close of $30,000.

Maloney will receive 27½ per cent of the gate when he tackles Carnera. This match is certain to top $100,000.

In the most, Maloney could not expect to get more than $5000 out of the Risko bout. By tackling Rubbery Jawn he might knock himself out of the $30,000 shot with Carnera and a month's vacation in Florida.

I believe Maloney and Dan Carroll, his manager, used good business judgment.

Miami Special Will Carry Local Fans South

Eddie Mack, with talk of the Maloney-Carnera bout very much in the air, announced that his Miami Special will leave Boston on Saturday morning, February 28, stop over at Southern Pines, N. C., on Sunday for church services, and arrive in Miami on Monday. The party will return to Boston on the following Saturday after it has witnessed the Maloney-Carnera bout and maybe won a few dollars on the Florida Derby.

Danie's Eager to Get Into Big Money

If Dick Daniels can win from Frank Schaaf in their ten-round bout at an Algonne A. A. show at the Arena on Monday night he will be able to crash into the big money. Daniels is 21 years of age and one of the few punchers among the younger crop of heavyweights. He does not [illegible] with his right duke.

Mack has signed Jack McCarthy of Rockland to oppose Jack Perry of Worcester in the eight-round [illegible].

Jack Aquaro, six round bouts. Tony Aquaro of Lynn will meet Billy Devins of Cambridge, while Lou Lotta, former amateur star will take on Sonny Suzzo of Newport, younger brother of Chick.

In the four rounders, Jackie Collins of Haverhill will take on Pete Apos of Providence, while Jackie Norton of Somerville will oppose Al Gillette of New Bedford.

Bobby Gerson of Dorchester, a local boy who can, will make a ring debut in the club's show when he [illegible] in the Irish-American A. C. tournament at the Arena on Friday night. Gershan is a big, powerful fellow and is able to hit with both hand.

Marquardt Likely to Play at Shortstop for Red Sox

By JOE CASHMAN

"I hear very nice reports about Al Marquardt, Nashville infielder. He hit .324 last year. If he does as well for us, he should be the regular shortstop."

Those remarks by Manager Shono" Collins of the Red Sox, on his last visit to town, started us searching for information on the athlete in question.

What we discovered was more than enough to please you.

Joe Cashman

Marquardt is a native of Toledo, O., and has been playing pro ball only three years. He is 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighs 154 pounds and throws and bats right-handed. He started out as a pitcher, but has done most of his playing at shortstop and third base.

He is a resident of a big city but lives on the outskirts, on a ranch, and spends his spare time raising silver foxes. Charles Quetschke is a noted fox and dog breeder, who presented the famed airedale "Laddie Boy" to the late President Harding. Interested in players in silver foxes and he now has some of the finest specimens in the country.

Marquardt started playing ball in high school as a pitcher. He must have had some mound ability because the team was undefeated during the season with it, but when he entered Toledo University he was shifted to third base.

Marquardt Quit College After Two Years

He quit college after two years and turned pro in 1928 by joining the Canton (Ohio) club. He was put on third base and for two seasons hit well over .300 and led the [illegible] guardians in fielding.

He up he was sent to Nashville last spring.

There he was shifted to shortstop, but the change didn't hurt either his batting or fielding. He wheeled the agate to the tune of .324 in 300 games and was among the best fielding shortstops in the circuit.

Marquardt comes up to battle for the job with Hal Rhyne and Rabbit Warstler, two fine fielders who have never hit .300 in their lives. All the rookie has to do is prove a .300 hitter in the big show to capture the berth, for Manger Collins is determined to have an infield with a punch.

Two more signed contracts were received at the Fenway Park offices today, according to Secretary Hy Mason. One was from Otis Miller and the other from Bobby Reeves.

Sonnenberg and Wykoff Clash in Feature Mat Bout

MARSHALL TO TACKLE KOMAR

Complete Card at Arena Tonight

"Dynamite Gus" Sonnenberg, Providence, vs. Leo Wykoff, St. Louis. Two falls out of three to a finish.

Everett Marshall, Los Angeles, vs. Joe "Bull" Komar, Lithuania.

Pat McGill, Wakefield, vs. Farmer George McLean, California; 45-minute time limit, one fall to finish.

Bill Demetral, Chicago, vs. Abe Kaplan, New York.

Tony Catalano, Italy, vs. Harry Mannos, Springfield.

Jack Ganson, Lithuania, vs. Cyclone Ross, New York; 15-minute time limit.

First bout, 8 o'clock; main bout, at or about 10 o'clock.

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg, one of the most colorful figures in sport, will be greeted by a near capacity crowd when he clashes with Leo Wykoff, former University of St. Louis star, in a finish mat bout at the Arena tonight, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

It will be Sonnenberg's first Boston appearance since he lost his title to Ed George in a match at Los Angeles.

Jack Conway

Gus, however, is still the darling of the mob. He has the kind of color that makes Babe Ruth such an attraction in baseball.

Sonnenberg took a layoff following his defeat at the hands of George. The rest gave him back his lost vitality. He then stepped in and scored three victories in bouts on the coast.

Gus started Paul Bowser today when he informed him he made the trip from Los Angeles and Chicago by plane and that he came in from the Windy City on the Twentieth Century Limited.

"I always use a plane in the hop between Los Angeles and Chicago," said Gus.

"But you should take the train this time of the year," insisted Bowser.

"Have it your own way," replied Gus, "but I've got to take any long train jump when a plane is handy. I always get a kick out of soaring over the Rockies."

"Perhaps they'll come up and kiss you some day," asserted Bowser.

"They cannot be any tougher than the heads of some of the wrestlers," asserted Sonny.

Wykoff Will Give Gus Hard Battle

Wykoff will make things interesting for Sonnenberg tonight. The former University of St. Louis star has won all of his Boston starts. He is rated as one of the most promising grapplers in the country by keen judges of the mat game. He has speed, wrestling ability and a world of aggressiveness.

Everett Marshall, latest Pacific Coast sensation, will also appear on tonight's card. He will have Joe "Bull" Komar as an opponent in a finish match. Marshall has victories to his credit over Joe Stecher and Stranger Lewis. He is anxious to secure another shot at Sonnenberg who is the only wrestler who has ever defeated him.

Farmer George McLean of California and Pat McGill of Wakefield will mingle in another bout.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

GETTING READY TO TOSS BULL

EVERETT MARSHALL, youthful grappler from the west coast, who goes hunting for headlocks and fishing for footholds in the Arena mat show tonight. Everett meets the bulgy Bull Komar. He is shown above going through his training for the bout. Marshall has been pinned but once, Gus Sonnenberg turning the trick on the coast.

JACK DEMPSEY HAS INFECTED HAND

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—Jack Dempsey's infected hand was bothering the former heavyweight champion of the world, this afternoon, but, with characteristic optimism, he said he expected it would be "all right in a day or two."

Nevertheless Dempsey is forced to remain in his rooms at an uptown hotel.

"I had a pimple on one of my fingers on the left hand when I went to Arlie McGovern's gymnasium Tuesday to work out," Dempsey explained to International News Service this afternoon. "I punched the bag and the pimple broke. That night it became swollen and caused me some trouble. I doctored it myself, but yesterday it became worse.

"So Dr. Sweet lanced it. It still is painful.

"An old friend of mine, Dr. Robert Brennan of Polytechnic Hospital, heard of my bad hand and he is coming up to see me late today and look it over.

"Oh, I guess it will be all right soon."

HUNTER JOINS PRO NET RANKS

New York, Jan. 22 (US)—Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle publisher, Bill Tilden's former doubles partner and for the last two years No. 2 in the tennis rankings as a singles player, has turned professional and will tour the country with Tilden and other professionals under the management of Jack Curley.

Hunter will make his first professional appearance at Madison Square Garden on the night of Feb. 18 when Tilden and Karel Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian expert, will be featured in a singles match.

Hunter will again team up with Tilden in the doubles. This famous team toured Europe in 1927 and won five out of six international matches.

Hunter is 36 years old and a native of New York city. Under the tutelage of Tilden he jumped from 12th to second place in the 1927 national ranking.

Tilden and Hunter Play Next Month

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter, former Davis Cup stars, will make their professional tennis debut early next month at Punta Gorda, near Ft. Myers, Fla., it was announced today by Bert St. Clair of Barron Collier, Inc. Tilden, who is a close friend of Collier's, helped him construct courts at Punta Gorda and will play six exhibition singles matches there with Hunter.

Barry Wood Opposed to Spring Football Practise

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although dozens of specialists have re-diagnosed football's ailments and again traced them back to the epidemic of over-emphasis, it has remained for a player, Barry Wood, Harvard captain-elect, to attempt to isolate the germ of this pernicious gridiron disease.

He believes that the stands of the massive college stadia are the incubators of the germ and that the spectators are more susceptible to it than the players or coaches.

"Most of Harvard's over-emphasis," Wood said, "can be found in the stadium and not down on the playing field. Graduates and other supporters of the Harvard team are even more disturbed about the outcome of a game than the players themselves, most of whom play for the fun of the game."

Wood, a level-headed and clear-thinking youth who, as a forward passer ranks with the famed Benny Friedman, has no illusions about football. Though it is just a game, a source of pleasure to him, he has made an extensive study of it.

As a quarterback he knows the coach's viewpoint as well as that of the player. He is convinced that nothing is seriously affected by so-called over-emphasis.

Wood Blames Spectators for Irksome Features

Wood blames the spectators for most of the game's irksome features, for the looker-on, he charges, is responsible for the unwholesome fact that college football players compete under a greater mental strain than do members of other sport teams.

"The pressure on a player," he explained, "is greater in football than in any other sport because a gridiron mistake is generally much more costly than an error in baseball or a slip in hockey. Too often the player who muffs a forward or fumble is harshly judged by the crowd and forced to bear a heavy share of the blame for a defeat."

Wood's idea of the football millennium is a game that provides pleasure for the victors and vanished alike and satisfies every spectator.

Besides being one of the most versatile athletes Harvard has had in a generation, Wood also is a Phi Beta Kappa. He is a deep student of all sports.

Another source of over-emphasis, he believes, are the colleges that disregard the fact that football belongs to the players. Wood cited the so-called preseason institutions that are always ready to expand every new football idea and have, in the past, forced a new and unwilling majority to follow their example.

On this minority, Wood placed the blame for the great stress that has been laid on spring and preseason practise. He considers this training unpleasant and unnecessary.

The new Crimson football leader is strongly in favor of abolishing spring practise at Harvard and his only suggestion for a general improvement is that all colleges agree on a uniform date to start football practise.

He explained that the only time he ever found drudgery in the game was when he competed against players who had practised longer and were better conditioned than he and his teammates.

Two important happenings in interscholastic competition come quickly to Wood's mind. He was discussing sportsmanship on the field and fun in sport when he gave as an example the Army game of last fall.

He said he had never seen a man hit any more fun out of a game than did a big Cadet fullback (presumably John Price, Army cuirassier). Time after time this tackle would be in the Harvard backfield to get his man and sometimes he would be pushed to the ground by interferers. Always he had this same remark, a broad grin on his face: "Come on boys, this is duck soup."

As a team in general, Wood said he never competed against a finer group of sportsmen than the McGill University boys with whom Harvard met in Buffalo during the Christmas holidays.

It was a hard game. The checking was close and until the last few minutes the score was tied 2 to 2. Every McGill player, according to Wood, played the game as if he liked it and their attitude enabled the Harvard team in return to play easily throughout.

This type of competition, Wood said, removes any mental pressure and really makes intercollegiate sport a pleasure. Following the game, which Harvard won 2 to 2 the McGill players went into the dressing room and mixed with the Harvard squad.

I was to Wood's mind the ideal circumstances that should surround intercollegiate play.

RACE COURSE CHANGED AT BROOKLINE

Announcement of sweeping changes in the steeplechase course at The Country Club, Brookline, bringing the start and finish of each race and all the jumps in full view of all spectators, and the dates for the 41st annual race meet of the Eastern Horse Club were made by Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., of Hamilton, vice-president of the Eastern Horse Club.

The first two days of the meet at Brookline will see the horses in action on June 17 and 20, with the opening day at Hareland, the private racing establishment of John R. Macomber at Framingham Center, on June 22.

The wide turn around the clubhouse and in back of the grandstand has been eliminated, having been moved into the infield where the three jumps, hitherto outside the view of the crowd, will now be seen easily by the thousands who annually flock to the Brookline races.

The spectacular "water jump" will be located directly in front of the grandstand, while the "gravel pit" will also be visible from the stand, infield and other parts of the course.

The bringing in of these jumps, along with the other brush jump on the back stretch, makes the new course compact, with every obstacle in full view of the crowds all over the course.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, "Golf's Greatest Teacher."

New golf irons for 1931, modeled to meet the new larger and lighter ball, bear two remarkable characteristics: First, the makers dipped back into golfing art guilty to get them and, secondly, their aim is to offset to some extent the larger and lighter ball that now goes into use. The clubs throughout are "stubby." This is more noticeable in the irons than in the woods. The weight of the head has not been changed, but it has been concentrated into a head that is slightly shorter and slightly thicker. This is scarcely noticeable to the eye, but if, for example, your old mashie head is four inches from heel to toe, the new one would be three and three-quarters inches. And so on throughout the set. Obviously, this concentrates the weight a bit more and should, the makers say, give the new ball virtually the same distance the old one had.

Signs Will Tell Distance of Homers at Braves Field

There'll be no more guessing concerning the distance of home run wallops at Braves field in the future.

Signs indicating the total number of feet from home plate will decorate the fences at the Tribal wigwam next season and fans will be able to tell in an instant how far the ball traveled. The Braves are the first big league club to adopt this plan, which should prove popular.

With freak homers out of the question at Braves field an idea of the dimensions at the various border lines are presented herewith:

From home plate to left field is 353 feet. From home plate to right field at the nearest point is 310 feet, but the right field pavilion goes out at such a wide angle toward the bleachers that the distance quickly mounts up to 365 feet. The farthest point at Braves field is on almost a direct line to the flagpole and measures 416 feet.

Larry Rice Defeats Canadian Court Star

Montreal, Jan. 22 (AP)—George Lott of Chicago advanced to the quarter finals today in defense of his Canadian indoor tennis championship by defeating D. P. Hatch of Montreal, 8 6, 6 1. Lott was extended in the first set, but cruised easily to victory in the second.

Berkeley Bell of New York paraded through to the quarter-final round with an easy two-set victory over A. McMartin of Montreal. The score was 6—1, 6—0.

Lawrence C. Rice of Newton, Mass., turned back Dr. Jack Wright of the Canadian Davis cup team in the closest match of the day, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4. G. C. Plimpton of Boston defeated R. Evans of Harvard, 6—3, 6—4.

Rugby Player Gets 3-Month Sentence

Bordeaux, France, Jan. 22 (AP)—Roger Taillantou, one of France's best known international rugby players, today received a suspended sentence of three months' imprisonment on a charge of manslaughter.

In a championship rugby match last April he tackled Michel Fradin, another player, so violently that Fradin's spine was broken and he died.

Police Dept. Five Looking for Games

The Boston police department basketball team under the direction of Sergt. Edmund V. Callahan, is looking for opposition. The team has played but one game, winning from the Coast Guard, base 8, by the score of 33-28.

The police quintet is anxious to fill its schedule and will meet any team, members of the police force or not and is willing to turn the proceeds over to the unemployment fund of home city or town.

The Police T. T. has been booked for a game on Feb. 9. For games, call Sergt. Callahan, Kenmore 6760.

Ferrell and Morgan Indian Holdouts

Cleveland, Jan. 22 (INS)—Wesley Ferrell, star moundsman, and Eddie Morgan, slugging first baseman, of the Cleveland Indians, today returned their 1931 contracts to Manager Billy Evans unsigned.

Both were given substantial increases in salary but apparently they are not satisfied, Evans stated.

B. C. in Proposed Baseball League

New ork, Jan. 22 (INS)—Athletic [illegible] of Princeton and New York Universities today were conducting negotiations for the establishment of another Eastern baseball league of 12 universities and colleges. Invitations to join have been sent to Syracuse, Colgate, Georgetown, Penn State, Army, Brown, Cornell, Holy Cross, Lafayette, Villanova, Rutgers, C. C. N. Y. and Fordham.

If the league is formed the winner of the "pennant" would challenge the winner in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, consisting [illegible] of the other prominent Eastern teams, to an intercollegiate world series.

Return Bout Planned

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, was considering today to sign Leo Harvey, British middleweight champion, and Vince Dundee of Newark, N. J., for a return bout at the Garden on Feb. 13.

Rugby Game Tomorrow

Boston College and Holy Cross will meet in a rugby game tomorrow afternoon at Fenway park, starting at 2:30 o'clock. The game will be the first of a series of three between the two colleges.

Girl of 18 Is Entitled to Some Good Times

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young girl of 18, considered pretty and have a nice disposition. (At least that's what they tell me.) Now here is my problem. My mother is very strict with me at times. It seems that every time I have a date she always keeps me home. I have met a very nice fellow and he would like to keep company with me and honestly I would like to accompany him also. But my mother holds me back. He isn't the only fellow I've been asked out with. Please, Miss Fairfax, help me out and give me some advice. I see no reason why I shouldn't be able to go out, do you?

BLONDEE.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Blondee: Your mother may have perfectly good reasons for objecting to the boys you know which you do not mention. Without going into detail, it would seem that a girl of eighteen should be allowed some freedom and a few good times. I wouldn't make an issue of it, but why not talk it over and find out why your mother objects to your going out?

Should Pick Own Friends

DEAR Miss FAIRFAX:

I am 18 years old, and I have never had any one suggest with them but I am only with them at work because I am kept strict by my parents, and never can go out at night. Are they fair? I work all day and make about $25 to $30 a week. Many men have asked me out with them but I have had to refuse, but now a fellow whom I like has asked me and I'm ashamed to tell I can't see him at night and I want to. Shall I tell the young man the truth or shall I keep on going as I am?

BROWN EYES

Dear Brown Eyes: Any girl of 18 who is able to earn $25 to $30 a week is entirely able to pick her own friends and have a little freedom. I do think your parents are unfair. Your only chance of ever going out is by telling them you have already been asked and what I don't advise burning the candle at both ends. I think you might be able to accept an invitation from him occasionally in a while. Why not tell your folks how you feel about it in a sane, reasonable way? Your encouraging independence certainly lightens their hold on your actions, and I for one see no harm in your having a few good times. You have earned them.

If You Love Him, Have Patience

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX,

I would like you to advise me as I am 17 years old and am very much in love with a boy. I met him last summer through one of my friends. Since that time we have been seeing each other pretty often. He used to act as though he did care some for me, but lately is very peculiar. I don't know whether he is in love with someone else. Would you stay with him or give him up entirely. I am also in fear of him finding another girl

ANXIOUS EVE

Dear Anxious Eve: If you really love the boy you'll have patience and wait developments. Don't act as if you were afraid of losing him, but be your natural jolly self, as you were when he first met you. It's hard to tell what affects a man's moods sometimes. Don't force a break unless you have to.

New Beauty Fashions Call For Slender Arms

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

MOST WOMEN, I know, are not particularly partial to that persistent, exacting taskmaster of beauty—exercise. But in view of advance word that the new spring frocks are to be rather snug fitting, with short sleeves, it behooves us to take heed. So let us see what can be done about trimming down the waistline and upper arms.

Heavy matronly arms are not in keeping with a youthful face or girlish figure, therefore, the young ladies with overplump arms will find it advantageous to reduce this part of the body or keep them under cover during the approaching season.

The arm thrusting exercise is not new, but it is by far the most effective exercise for the purpose.

Clenching the fists tightly, drop the arms at the sides, then with a decided thrust, raise the arms straight upward; drop them at the sides; then thrust the arms out to the sides. Bring the arms to position, then thrust them forward; straight out in front of the body on an even line with the shoulders. When you have completed the entire routine you will have counted to 100. Remember to put sufficient "pep" in each thrust so that a decided stop is felt when the arms have been drawn to their full length.

This exercise should be done at least once each day, but after the first week you will notice such a decided improvement in the general contour of the arm that nothing in the world can induce you to give it up for a single day.

My old favorite of camphor and alcohol may also be massaged over the arms for reducing purposes. This lotion is made by dissolving two one-ounce squares of finely shaved camphor in one quart of rubbing alcohol. After 24 hours this lotion may be massaged over the parts of parts to be reduced.

Because of the rather drying effects of the reducing liquid, it is advisable to put a little soothing lotion over the skin each night before retiring. Or, if preferred, cold or cleansing cream will answer the purpose.

Dresses in Pastel Tints

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—There's something new to be seen these days. You'll notice it wherever fur coats and dark cloth coats are worn. A bit of it at the neckline. Maybe a bit of it at the hemline.

This new something is color in dresses. Pastel color. Pale gray-blues. A dusty rose. Or a soft malze-like yellow.

You've been seeing bright [illegible] and greens and blues and [illegible] these autumn days. [illegible] the color [illegible] Your only chance of seeing [illegible] is at the opera or [illegible] and what I don't advise burning the candle at both ends. New Short Peplum

The plaid dress—and this comes under the heading of pastels when the plaid is in the soft pastel tints—has the very short peplum effect that's gradually taking the place of the tunic you've seen all winter.

The slee closing of the bodice is another new idea. And you'll notice that this dress is two-piece. That's another mark of newness.

What's new about the other dress—a good one for a plain pastel color? That feeling of upward draping in the front, for one thing. The neckline draped in an individual looking scarf for another. And the very full peplum that hugs the sides of the skirt so closely.

* * *

With these pastel dresses, what colors are worn? A hat that matches either the coat or the dress. More women match it to their coat—because they feel it's a bit early for cued a little colored hat.

But if practicality and economy are no object—and you want a light colored hat—by all means match your dress.

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

SO FAR, Connie felt that she had not won Kitty's confidence. Even when she told her how at the last minute she had realized that a marriage with Jim Tracy was a mistake, Kitty was not warmed to an exchange of intimacies. Connie had not told all the truth —and kept silent the fact that virtually they had quarreled about Kitty. Obscurely, Kitty sensed that her sister knew she was hearing half truths. The girl's face hadn't a vestige of cordiality, and Connie wondered if she were bored or merely polite in listening to this. It was difficult to keep up a strain of sympathy for Kitty against the bank of her remoteness. Still, the facts would have to come out eventually.

"You probably have a pretty fair idea of what my life is like," Connie said, directly. "I know almost nothing about you —and I want to. Tell me, what do you do for a living?"

"Do you have to know"

"Why not?"

Kitty laughed quietly.

"I'll spare your feelings," she said. "You wouldn't approve of some of the things I've done, I'm sure."

"Do you approve of them yourself?" Connie asked her, pleasantly.

"Oh, I've never worried—much. I suppose you are wondering if I am what people call a 'good girl.' I'll relieve your mind on that score—I am. That part of it is a miracle, I guess."

With Crooks

"Your friend, Mr. Gurson, called this the underworld," Connie reminded again. She spoke of gyps, crooks. Have you been mixed up with them, Kitty?"

"Why, of course!" Kitty retorted. "Why, I know at least a dozen people in Sing Sing right now—know them by their first names. What of it?"

Connie returned her gaze steadily. If Kitty chose to be indifferent the privilege was mutual.

"I suppose it's your affair exclusively if you like that sort of people best," she returned. "If there's anything you don't care to tell me about, I'm certainly not going to try to pump you."

Kitty made a derisive noise at the table and then pointed. Suddenly, by impulse, she thrust her hand across the table and turned her palm upward. At the base of her fingers—where Connie's palm was soft and pink—there was a row of hard callouses

"Look at that hand—and don't get fresh with me about my habits!" Kitty said, rudely.

"That ought to answer a lot of your questions. By rough and horny like a man's, it got that way handling a flat iron 10 hours a day in a hand laundry. Now go ahead and razz me about my friends if you want to."

* * *

The physician told Connie that after another day in bed her mother would be well enough to be up and around. Connie took Kitty into the bedroom.

"Mother, dear, this is Kitty."

The form on the bed was wan but the eyes were bright with intelligence. A small, pale hand was extended to Kitty, and there was a firm, gripping pressure.

"Connie has told me about you, child. We're glad to have you with us, and we want you to feel like one of the family."

These surroundings, more lavish than anything she had seen except in motion pictures, gave Kitty an awkward feeling of embarrassment, but she maintained outwardly a determined calmness.

"This is an experiment with all of us," she said, "and I don't fit in we'll all be uncomfortable, but it won't take an awfully long while to find out about that."

"You must try to feel perfectly at home," Mrs. Calvert said. "I'll try—but there's another thing I want to mention." Kitty returned. "How are you going to explain me to all of your friends? Of course, I'm not a scandal—I'm just as legitimate as Connie—but what's the use of giving people a lot of inside information to gossip about? If they know I'm Connie's half-sister there'll be a lot of talk, going on behind our backs. Why can't we simply say that I'm just a friend—or something like that?"

Connie and her mother objected simultaneously. It was not fair to Kitty, they pointed out, for her to take an assumed identity. Far better to admit the plain truth, and ignore any resulting gossip, they insisted.

But Kitty was obdurate, and in the end she had her way. It was agreed that she be known by her own name, Kitty Calvert, and vaguely explained as a relative of Connie's father. This was indefinite, but it saved trouble.

"Your mother's a peach," Kitty declared when she and Connie had left the room.

They drove into Stamford and took an express train to New York, stopping before they boarded the train at a store where Connie raided a bit on the subject of shopping for Kitty's outfit totally ignorant of both girls' tastes. Fifth ave. and the adjacent side streets. Lingerie, shoes, dresses, dinner and evening gowns were their fare. The mere selecting. Fabrics foamy and smooth, silk sheer as cobwebs. The symphonetic concern, if salespeople who scented a big round of wealth. All of this was costing considerable money, but there was no needless expenditure.

Guard Baby Carefully From 'Catching' Diseases

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

GREAT CARE must be taken to guard the baby from the germs of the contagious, or "catching," diseases. It is a very easy matter to pass on to a young child the germs of diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough or any other of the contagious diseases. They may come from one who has the disease or from one who habitually spreads the germs, a so-called "carrier."

Dr. Copeland

Every precaution should be taken to protect the baby from contact with the discharges from the nose and throat of those in the family. It should be guarded against those who are coughing and sneezing. Kissing the child should be forbidden.

After a baby has been near someone who has had scarlet fever, diphtheria or whooping cough, or other disease the following symptoms may occur

In scarlet fever there is sudden sickness within five or ten days after exposure. Vomiting, a red, sore throat, high fever and hot dry skin; together with chills are not uncommon. After a day or two come small, bright red spots, close together, on the skin, and cover most of the body

Whooping cough must be considered a serious ailment. From a week to two weeks after exposure there is illness which slowly increases. There is a slight cold, a running nose and a hard and dry cough. This turns to a choking cough and ends in a wheezing, sharp sound, the familiar "whoop" that every one has heard. When it occurs the child's face becomes violently red, and he gasps for breath. Whooping is a long drawn out and wearing out process

When there is the slightest sign of any of these symptoms a doctor should be called at once.

Answers to Health Queries

C. L. N. Q—What do you advise for acne?

A—Correct your diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation at all costs. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and put your question.

M. J. K. Q—What do you advise for Bright's disease?

A—This should have proper medical attention and treatment. Have your doctor advise you. Diet is one of the important factors in the treatment.

Present of Flowers to 'Deb'

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Is it correct for a débutante a gift before she comes out, or is it correct to give it after she comes out, or never at all?

I met a most charming girl this summer and have been wondering whether it would be correct for me and those people to send her flowers and the card, or to go further and get a gift for her. If [illegible] please suggest something.

WONDERING

The perfect gift for the débutante, and the only one usually given, are fine flowers that are sent to her on the day of her début. These bouquets are the appropriate messengers of our good wishes to her, and contribute our part of the floral background that is so lovely a part of her part.

We are thrifty, but only with our money but with our time and energy as well. As a result our families are better nourished, with more leisure for the ones responsible for their welfare. Fewer days are lost from sick illness, and every one is happier. Our modern high pressure home is built upon a foundation of right and buoyant health.

Using Peter's Funds for Paul's Speculations

Banker Criticizes Bankers; General Motor Facts Versus Rumors

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Jan. 22—"For a bank to operate successfully, it must operate conservatively; it cannot put $3 money of Peter into the speculations of Paul."

That pungent criticism of recent banking ongoings was made by this level-headed president of a bank which has successfully met fair weather and foul for 107 years, Percy H. Johnston of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co.

B. C. Forbes

This further statement may explain some why they have found bankers apparently stony-hearted:

"The fundamentals of sound banking are constant. That banks must be managed by competent financial engineers has again been brought forcibly before the people. Favor and benevolence are not the attributes of banking, but expert justice and the rigid performance of contract, are its rightful foundations."

Distinctly better times are near at hand. That is the deduction drawn by Mr. Johnston from his long and broad experience, as a national bank examiner and as a bank executive in the South and in N y York. He declares:

"Many thoughtful people believe that the present depression has about run its course. The share this opinion and believe that, industry and business will revive and return to sounder and more old-fashioned principles where wealth is created by work and endeavor and not by the process of marking up values overnight.

"The nation has had a costly and sad lesson, but we are confident it will profit by past mistakes and in the end will emerge stronger and sounder than ever before. Fortunately, we are a credit-y nation, and our credit banks are in a sound and liquid position and are amply fortified to meet the new and enlarged needs of business that will inevitably come."

Incidentally, the Chemical's deposits last year averaged fully $62,000,000 more than in 1929, indicating that conservatism inspires confidence.

J. E. Davidson, president of the Nebraska Power Company, which, by the way, succeeded in making a remarkable showing during the trying year of 1930, gives this interesting information in a personal letter:

"This section of the country is in quite satisfactory condition. If grain prices were a little higher I think it would be about as good as it ever was.

"You know that the packing companies have made a good showing this year. Indications are that they will do considerably better in 1931. The Union Stock Yards Company had the best year in its history. Omaha is growing rapidly as a live stock center. We do not have to be unduly optimistic to feel that in time we will exceed Chicago as the largest stock and packing center in the world. Increasing mileage of the good roads in Nebraska, and other surrounding States, is brining us tremendously in this respect."

What has Chicago to say to that?

Executives of General Motors have been receiving telephone inquiries about "a change in the capital structure of the corporation." One inquirer has it "on good authority" that at the next directors' meeting the common stock would be changed three for one. Another said a banker told him the finance committee had approved the change and that the division on the new stock would be 3½ a share. A third inquirer said a member of the finance committee had told him "very confidentially" that the number of shares would be removed from 42,000,000 to approximately 15,000,000 and that the new stock certificates were now being printed. Still another had more details "on the authority of one of the biggest bankers in the East."

Here are the facts:

General Motors Corporation is going to split up its series of stock certificates. This has been made necessary by the increasing number of stockholders. Last year forty-three new stockholders were added. The corporation's new order for certificates, earlier in size, will save quite a few thousand dollars to the corporation annually—just one of many economies designed to benefit the stockholders.

There will be no change in the capital structure and the regular dividend, I'm assured, will be voted.

Wall Street's stories make good food for bears, but with only such fundamental food they would soon starve to death.

N. Y. Chemical Bank Earnings $4,528,515

Earnings of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co. for the year of 1930 amounted to $4,528,515, Percy H. Johnston, president, stated in his annual report to stockholders.

MARKET HOLDS WIDESPREAD INTEREST

By FRANK H. MELOON

The widespread interest held by the stock market is poorly indicated by the volume of actual transactions. The plain fact is that many thousands of business leaders follow the fluctuations closely from day to day for a clew to trade trends. Market comments also afford them the best available ideas regarding the business progress and outlook. A rise in the market has a very powerful psychological effect, especially if sustained, bringing added confidence to leaders. Many in State Street believe it a shame that active trading has not been placed around the very powerful bear cliques in recent weeks.

Upward of "30,000,000 is disbursed annually to New Englanders by First National Stores, Inc., according to a statement issued today by Charles F. Adams, treasurer, who declares that cash paid for goods and services to New England individuals and business firms has increased yearly and is expected to reach a new high in 1931. The company's yearly sales volume is in excess of $110,000,000.

• • •

Mr. Adams points out that First National is exclusively New England in origin and operations and that 75 per cent of the 5000 stock holders are New Englanders.

"This means that the bulk of our profits is spent or banked in New England," he states, "and that the effect on each of our stores is owned by a partnership of two New Englanders. Landlords in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut realize $10,000 a day in rentals. Producers in the five states receive over $35,000,000 yearly. Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

The Steel Corporation's report, will as issued next Tuesday afternoon, according to reports of production during the three months it would have been able to earn between 75 cents and a dollar a share. The latest estimate puts net at between 30 and 40 cents a share. If this were correct, it would mean the Corporation operated under the 50 per cent report for most of the quarter, or else that charge-offs were very drastic.

Natural Gas Issues Reach Best Levels

Stocks of the natural gas company, including Columbian Carbon and Houston Oil, sold today at the best levels on the move. Natural gas companies carrying out large expansion programs, the major groundwork of which is especially encouraging to investors, were favorite speculations for a time last year, and their prospects looked good by comparison with what they were when they were being purchased at higher prices.

Shorts Are Paying in Auburn Squeeze

Auburn Auto's new advance today brought that stock around 17 points above its low of last week, principally at the expense of the shorts.

No Lower Freight Rates Are Expected

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said today that consolidation of the Eastern roads will make for more economical operations but probably will not result in lower freight rates.

Dominion Stores Are Making Profit

At the end of 1930 Dominion Stores, Ltd., had 227 stores in profitable operation. The company's second capital consists of 277,715 shares of no par value, which are ahead of which there are outstanding mortgages totalling $99,000 only. There is also $1,000,000 issue of 6½ per cent preferred stock authorized but not issued. Net profits in 1929, $590,479 as compared with $555,990 in 1928 and $197,438 in 1927.

While the annual report for 1930 is not yet available, the president stated that the earnings last week were well maintained in that year but that net earnings were somewhat affected by declining commodity prices. However, net earnings will be shown equivalent to $3.10 a share during the year as compared with $2.12 in 1929. A write-off of $50,000 for new equipment was made during the year. Dividends are payable at the annual rate of $1.20 in cash and 4 per cent in stock.

Lambert Profits Will Show a Gain

Consolidated net profit of Lambert Co. for 1930 will be slightly ahead of 1929, but earnings per share will be off 40 per cent from the 1929 result, figured on a comparable basis. During 1930 the number of outstanding shares out standing was increased by 50,000 for acquisition of Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic Brush Co., and 1929 earnings per share will be figured on 748,926 shares against 636,926 shares in 1929.

Lambert's 1930 net profit, after all charges and taxes, will be around $7,000,000 equal to approximately $9.50 a share on the 748,926 shares. These earnings will be on a consolidated basis, including earnings of Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic Brush Co. of Massachusetts. The report for 1929 did not include earnings of the other company, acquisition of which was not completed until early in 1930. However, inclusion of its earnings and number of shares of Lambert stock issued for its acquisition, would not materially have affected earnings per share, the 1929 report was restated to Pro-Phy-Lac-Tic for 1929.

Erie Earnings Estimates Vary

Standard Statistics estimates Erie's earnings as 50 cents a share for 1930. So, too, the New York Stock Exchange house letter today says.

"Erie Railroad income for last year is estimated at about $1 a share."

Current Quarter Poor for Steels

Wall Street writer for a big investment house today states:

"If the steel corporation were able to earn only 40 cents, or less, in the last three months, Beth lehem and other independents could hardly have earned anything for their junior stocks. Reports from the industry indicate that none of the steel producers can earn dividends in the current quarter."

Rails Sustained by Trust in I. C. C.

The rails are sustained by expectation that the commerce commission will issue valuation report in a small scattered road in the near future that will show a more liberal attitude. As the railroads have no worry about recapture of income now, and as general business conditions are such as to make it impossible to raise rates such a change by the commission would be too late to do any good. The important factor in connection with the rails is the belief in the forthcoming December earnings reports, and many will be bad.

General Motors Has Diversification

Earnings of General Motors for 1930 will be published early in February and the Street is looking for an excess of the $3 a share dividend requirements. This will compares with $5.49 a share reported for 1929. There has been a moderate amount of long-term buying in the stock recently by interests which are impressed with the diversification of the company's activities.

In addition to its prominence in the automobile field because the line of cars covers every price class, General Motors has important other interests such as Frigidaire, Delco Light and Ethyl gasoline, and is branching out in activities in the radio and aviation fields.

Convertible Bond Offering by Fox

There is rumor that plan has been prepared for taking care of the Fox Film debentures falling due in April. Reported that a kind a new bond carrying attractive conversion privilege will be offered in exchange.

Business Machines' Record Earnings

Another record in earnings is looked for by International Business Machines for 1930, and estimate are that results will be equal to about $11 a share. This compare with $10.01 a share in 1929 and $8.50 a share in 1928. Cash dividend was increased from 75 to 38 a share annually beginning last year.

The company's products, including tabulating machines, cost and time recorders, weighing devices, etc., are protected by patents and in some lines there is little or no competition. The employees of the company is in the unusual position of having to construct additional plant space, which is contrary to experiences of manufacturers in other lines.

Allis-Chalmers' Unfilled Orders

Houses close to Allis-Chalmers estimate that the company will show net income of close to $4,000,000 for 1930, equal to nearly $14 a share on the 1,250,000 shares outstanding. This would compare with $4,330,868 or $14.4 a share in 1929, and with $3,363,910 or $12.38 a share in 1928.

Ability to show a drop of only 10 per cent from the record 1929 earnings reflects the good position of the company in its line as well as the trend which the management has exercised over operating expenses. More attention is being given to the fact that sales have entered the current year with unfilled orders of more than $17,000,000, compared with $12,872,000 on January 1, 1930.

Auto Improvement Help to Murray Body

If there is to be improvement in the automobile industry this year the manufacturers of automobile and accessory industries have given the prospects of the company considerable study and have reached quite a long position in the stock at the first sign of definite improvement in the passenger cars.

United Fruit Bear Squeeze?

Reports were current that shorts in United Fruit were experiencing some difficulty in extricating themselves from their position and that a campaign would be inaugurated against them shortly. During the closing months of 1930 United Fruit was one of the favorite targets of bearish professionals, but, it is understood that the most of the interest there is now represented since the publication of the annual report a short time ago.

At the same time, however, it has been evident that considerable amateur bort selling has taken place in "Fruit" on the recent advance.

Amer. Rolling Mills Dividend Uncertain

Failure of American Rolling Mills to cover its dividend requirements in 1930 has created considerable uncertainty over the maintenance of the present $2 annual rate. Earnings last year are estimated at only about half the dividend requirements, and continued unfavorably with the first showing. In that year the company reported net income of $1.24 a share on the common and in view of the unfavorable showing, "insiders" show little inclination to extend support to the rolling mills stock series. At the same time, however it is evident that quiet short cover by the inside group on the sale down to 14 has attracted some support.

Chesapeake & Ohio May Raise Dividend

Directors of Chesapeake & Ohio are expected to increase the annual dividend from $2.50 a share to $3 a share when they meet early in the year. The earning statement for 1930 showed that the road covered its dividend requirements by a substantial margin and that an increase could be made without altering the conservative policy of the management. Earnings figures were particularly encouraging in view of the generally unfavorable showing made by most railroads.

Am. International Breakup Value

It is understood that break up value of American International has improved about 8 per cent since end of 1930, suggesting about $21 a share valuation.

$75,000,000 Issues Test Bond Market

New York, Jan. 22—Absorptive powers of the Bond Market underwent another test today when $75,000,000 in new issues were offered Friday were well maintained and the most noticeable effect of the competition on the listed market was a moderate decrease in the volume of transactions.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were mixed in dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today, one issue as a whole unchanged to fractions. Edison Electric was a striking feature gaining 2 points.

Penn P P was around a point higher and fractional gains were made in Am New England Telephone, General Electric and American Woolen common was fractional, lower while the preferred was around a point higher New England Telephone was off around a point.

Directors of Monsanto Chemical Co. at the regular meeting next month are expected to declare the regular quarterly cash dividend of $1 a share. Work is progressing rapidly on reconstruction of the Boston plant of the Merrimac Chemical Co., the New England unit which was destroyed by fire last March. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by October 1 next. Operations will be conducted at the Woburn plant will be transferred to Everett. It is intended eventually to dispose of the Woburn unit.

RECOVERIES IN WALL STREET ARE SPIRITED

New York, Jan. 22—The New York Stock Exchange staged one of the most spirited recoveries of the new year today.

Trading was brisk in the final dealings, the transactions for the last 50 minutes aggregating 630,000 shares, making a turnover for the day of 1,860,740 shares, the largest recorded in an advancing market in a fortnight.

Furthermore, the bond list maintained a fairly good undertone, despite the pinching of $75,000,000 new offerings upon the market in a single day.

SHORTS ARE SQUEEZED

Shorts were squeezed in some of the more speculative shares, notably Auburn, which rose more than 6 points. Owing to the small floating supply, shorts in this issue have found themselves in tight positions several times of late.

Eastman, Allied Chemical, Case and International Business Machines 4 to 6.

Shares closing 2 to 3 points higher embraced a wide range of rails, utilities, specialties and miscellaneous manufacturing shares, including U. S. Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, American Water Works, North American, Chesapeake Corporation, Lackawanna, Pere Marquette & Hudson, Missouri Pacific, Loew's, Woolworth, Penick & Ford and Coca Cola.

The market virtually ignored the suspension of a small out of town commission house, which, together with the steady undertone maintained yesterday in the face of the unfavorable steel earnings estimate, made bears cautious.

Several bear traders are still maintaining a rather belligerent attitude. With distress stock apparently well liquidated, however, the short side of the market has lost much of its lustre.

FEW DIVIDEND CUTS

The extremely low money rates appear to be diverting funds into investment stocks, as well as bonds, and this is indicated as a factor in the firmness of the standard dividend-paying rails. Although immediate improvement in rail earnings are not in prospect, few dividend reductions are anticipated in this group.

Further considerable speculative interest has developed in expectation of the forthcoming Interstate Commerce Commission decision in the valuation of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad.

While the road in itself is small, this will be the first decision since the Supreme Court overruled the Commission's valuation procedure in the St. Louis and O'Fallon small rail case, on the ground that reproduction costs should be taken into account.

Credit remained extremely plentiful, and some short term commercial paper was reported moving at 2¼ per cent, although the rates were still formally quoted at 2½ to 2¾.

It was notable, however, that the demand is for only the best type of paper, as the market for secondary names is almost non-existent, despite the wide and plentiful supply of funds. Call money was still available outside at 1 per cent.

CITIES SERVICE MERGER SEEN

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—It was reported in Wall Street today that Cities Service Co. is arranging to acquire the Warner Quinlan Co., an important refiner and distributor of petroleum products in New Jersey and New York.

While the report could not be confirmed, it was learned in petroleum circles that Cities Service has had the Warner Quinlan matter in some time with a view of possibly acquiring it to increase its outlets in the East.

Warner Quinlan, which listed total assets of more than $30,000,000 in its last balance sheet, is a complete unit in the industry, having producing properties in Texas and Mexico, and its main refining plant at Warners, N. J.

Bus Competition Is Troubling Rails

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—Southwestern railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to reconsider its order it issued last July whereby the rate structure on cotton from certain Southwestern points to ports in Texas would be modified. The railroads contended they are not allowed to lower rates so they might compete with the bus traffic in their territory and the commission agreed to hol da hearing in Dallas February 12.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Jan. 22—Cotton futures were generally higher at the close today, finishing unchanged to up 17 points. Jan. 10.46-48. New contracts—Jan., 10.38-41; March, 10.43-45; May, 10.60; July, 10.80-81; Oct., 11.17-18; Dec., 11.37. Spot steady; middling 10.55.

Wheat Prices Mixed in Chicago Market

Chicago, Jan. 22—Corn closed unsettled, ¾-1¼ cents below yesterday's finish; wheat, ⅝ off to ¼ up; oats, ¼-⅝ down, and provision unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Official sales today 1,860,740 shares.

COOPERATION IS URGED TO AID BUSINESS

The way out of the business depression lies in the direction of rationalizing business processes and—include a machinery for co-operation and co-ordination, said Tryle Stanley Rukeyser, financial writer for the Boston Evening American, in an address at the banquet of the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association. He said:

"The ultimate remedy includes perhaps a drastic watering of anti-trust laws, which will entail a willingness to allow business to grow as big and as efficient as possible. A corollary to such letting down of the bars would be a machinery for public regulation of prices in industries where free competition may be disturbed."

Mr. Rukeyser said that the great need is a national awakening to the potentialities of our economic system. This new orientation involves a willingness to scrap obsolete political notions, prejudices and preconceptions. He declared:

"The way out of the depression is clear. Instead of a haphazard, decentralized, voluntary agency which can analyze the economic problems, which can make recommendations and which can act on them on the basis of scientific data without benefit of quack political ideas."

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Street hears today that Auburn has again been taken firmly in hand by the group who sponsored its recent rise. Their objective is said to be $125.

The more conservative traders, however, are making commitments in the affiliated company, Cord corporation listed on the Curb, on reports that the front wheel drive is gaining in popularity.

* * *

State Street continues to hear that Continental Baking "A" is to be moved upward about 10 points. The latest bull rumor is that the $50,000,000 8 per cent debenture issue outstanding will be called.

Plan, as told by various brokers, calls for the refunding of this stock through the issuance of convertible debentures. It is argued that the bonds could be placed at a lower interest rate, increasing the net available for stock.

* * *

Boston brokers are not in accord with statisticians who think that the utility shares are best judged on the issues earnings basis. Their contention that dividend payments should first be weighed by their ability to maintain current payments and, after this substitution, be purchased on a yield basis. On this criterion they will continue to recommend Telephone Gas when the return is 5 per cent.

Suspended Firm's Assets Tied Up

New York, Jan. 22—Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. of St. Louis were suspended by the New York Stock Exchange today. The Post Dispatch said today it learned from an unidentified source that the firm owed creditors $9,000,000 and had collateral, originally valued at $12,000,000, left. Liquidated now, would result in a big loss to creditors. The newspaper said the partners and their backers would lose approximately $1,500,000.

Canadians to Run New Borden's, Ltd.

Montreal, Jan. 22—Borden's, Limited, $19,000,000 holding company to own all the Canadian operating subsidiaries of the Borden Co., dairy products concern, was organized here today. Expansion in Canada, officials of the new company said, is the reason for the organization of Borden's, Limited, which will be managed almost entirely by Canadians.

CURB MARKET LEADERS SHOW SLIGHT GAIN

New York, Jan. 22—Curb stocks reflected the further improvement in speculative sentiment in today's session, and moderately higher price levels were recorded by the general run of active trading leaders.

The feature of the activity was the renewal of large scale demand in the low-priced section of the list, with many issues in this classification at new highs for the year. Utilities were uniformly higher with the best advances noted in American Gas & Electric, up 1¾, and United Light & Power up 1.

Heavy buying was evidenced in American Superpower, Associated Gas & Electric A, and United Gas, all of which edged fractionally higher.

Cities Service was able to show a small gain. Oils were firm, with Gulf, Standard of Indiana, Standard of Kentucky and Texas Pacific fractionally improved levels.

Specialties were the center of speculative buying, with A. O. Smith up 3, Great Atlantic & Pacific Stores up 3, and such low-priced issues as Cord Corporation, Ford Ltd., Missouri Kansas Pipe Line, Pilot Radio Tube and Technicolor moving up to new highs for the year.

Extra Is Ordered by Candle Company

Syracuse, N. Y. Jan. 22—Will & Baumer Candle Co. declared an extra dividend of 10 cents and regular quarterly of 10 cents, payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Feb 2.

The Mystery of Geraldine

bottles and packages that lay loosely around and I noticed that over one large bottle he lingered. Suddenly the doctor watched as the commissioner removed the strut cork, and sniffed at the neck of the bottle. Then, still without a word, Thatcher Colt left the bottle and went on prowling into the consultation room. He halted suddenly before a closed door.

"What is that?"

"A clothes closet," answered Dr. Maskell.

Thatcher Colt opened it and thrust his hand inside.

"May I ask," inquired Maskell, "what you hope to find in there, Mr. Commissioner?"

Backing out of the closet, Thatcher Colt showed a brown fur coat in his hand.

"Did this belong to Geraldine Foster?" he asked, turning toward the doctor and staring at him with profound melancholy.

"Yes, certainly. I cannot imagine what it is doing in there. I did not know it was there. The closet has not been opened by me since Saturday."

Wore the Coat

"Was this the coat she wore to work on Christmas Eve?"

"I am certain that it was. I saw her with it on when she went out to lunch."

Thatcher Colt closed his eyes as he stood there with the girl's coat held against his chest.

"Christmas Eve was a cold day," he said in a low voice. "The air was damp and raw and piercing. . . . Geraldine . . . were going out anywhere, she would need her coat. And there is her bag, hanging on the same nail with her coat. Where can the owner be—if she went out with no coat and no purse?"

In a strained silence we stood there while Thatcher Colt examined the bag, standing up on the small miscellany of its contents—compact, lipstick, a book of addresses, a roll of bills and a handful of silver. Putting the coat and bag into my hands the Commissioner turned again to Dr. Maskell.

"Do you suppose the mysterious woman who accosted you brought back the coat and purse? Did you notice if she carried anything?"

"Why—why—no, I did not," answered the physician. "What makes you think about that?"

"I am sorry if I have inconvenienced you," replied Thatcher Colt gloomily. "And I am sorry to say that I may have to trouble you soon again. For the present, good-night."

"Yes, certainly," said Doctor Maskell, opening wide his door and bowing.

But at the threshold, Thatcher Colt paused.

"Doctor," he said, "I am sorry to observe, on departing, that you have not been frank with me."

"What do you mean?" returned Maskell sharply.

"You failed to tell me that you and Geraldine quarrelled before you left on your errand of good cheer. You had a beauty quarrel, but you have kept quiet about it."

Doctor Maskell looked startled, then shrugged his shoulders.

"That is true," he admitted. "But it was a private matter. If Miss Foster returns, she will not want me to discuss the subject."

"But the police do want you to discuss it. What did you quarrel about?"

Again the physician shrugged his shoulders helplessly.

"About her engagement. She had broken it off. She told me about it. I told her she was a fool—that she should go through with the marriage. That is why we quarrelled."

"Why did she say she had broken off the engagement?"

"She did not tell me that."

The doctor was lying. Thatcher Colt knew that he was lying, and Maskell knew that he knew.

Without a word the Commissioner turned his back on the physician and I followed him out into the vestibule. Behind us the door of the Maskell offices closed quietly with a click that told us also how securely it was shut against us.

Mrs. Morgan

I had started down the white marble steps of the house on Washington St., North, when I was suddenly halted by a brief, tense word from Thatcher Colt. Looking back, I saw that he was standing in the vestibule, his pocket electric torch playing over the name-plates beside the door-bells. As I returned to his side he was pressing a button near the name "Gilbert Morgan."

Presently the familiar clicking of the latch was heard and once again the front door yielded to my hand on the knob. Up the broad staircase I followed my chief, to the second floor, where we found a woman standing at an open door, her face in shadow, but her blonde hair was radiant in the fall of yellow light from a lamp suspended above and behind her head.

"Is this Mrs. Morgan?" asked Colt promptly.

Without immediately replying, the woman looked at him closely and meanwhile I studied her. In spite of all that has since been said against her, I have always maintained that Mrs. Morgan was a beautiful woman. Odd as this may sound to those who know the history of the case, I nevertheless mean beautiful in its finest sense. There was more than prettiness to her soft and gentle features, and the tragic restlessness of her large dark lustrous blue eyes. She was a young woman, and, I repeat it, beautiful, but there was a lifetime of suffering in the watchful eyes, in the very tone with which she greeted us.

"I am Felise Morgan," she replied. "What is it you wish?"

Briefly and naturally, Thatcher Colt explained who he was and why he was there. But at the very mention of Geraldine Foster's name a gleam flashed dangerously from the woman's blue eyes.

"I know nothing about Geraldine Foster," she answered firmly.

Follow this absorbing mystery story daily in the Boston Evening American. The next chapter will appear tomorrow.

Special Red Cross Broadcast for Unemployment Relief Heard at 9 Tonight

Over the combined networks of the NBC, including WBZA and WEEI, radio listeners will hear, from 9 to 10 tonight, a special Red Cross program in which the voices of Calvin Coolidge, Alfred E. Smith and John Barton Payne, permanent chairman of the Red Cross, will urge concerted national effort towards relief of the unemployed in the cities and of the drought-stricken areas of the country.

Coolidge will speak in his official capacity as chairman of the President's recently named special drive committee from his home in Northampton.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, whom Mr. Hoover appointed vice-chairman of this committee, also will address the radio audience during this special program. He will speak from the New York studios of NBC.

Washington will be the third pick-up point when Payne will deliver an address from the capital in which he will outline plans for raising relief funds and will describe the system which will be used in distributing the needed aid and other relief measures.

A musical program originating in New York studios also will be heard during the hour. Many of the best-know NBC artists have offered their services.

Rudy Himself

RUDY VALLEE, whose meteoric-like rise in the radio world has made his name one of the best known among broadcasting artists. Rudy will be heard tonight with his orchestra over WEEI at 8 o'clock.

RADIO Personalities

A long distance commuting record for radio broadcasters is claimed by EDWIN ALGER, who travels from his farm near Cherryvale, Va., to New York each week, a round trip of 600 miles. . . . In a recent Arabesque performance, a tenor scheduled to appear before the mike failed to show up. Announcer GEORGE BEUCHLER stepped from the ranks, rendered two songs, and now the fan letters want to know who the new baritone find is. Which leads George to believe he will go on the concert stage. . . . ORRELL HANCOCK, CBS production manager, was baptized John, but several people, when introduced to him, smiled and told him they were Napoleon, Hancock changed his name. . . . Years ago VICTOR KOLAR, Detroit symphony conductor, shared a shabby room in N. Y. with RUDOLPH FRIML and OTTOCAR BARTIK. Met opera ballet master, and their combined income was just enough to buy their chief item of diet—boiled rice. We can picture what their combined incomes can purchase now. . .

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

VETERANS SHOULD GET THEIR COMPENSATION NOW!

EVERY citizen of the United States with pride in his country and regard for its obligations should support legislation to effect immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates held by veterans of the World War.

These certificates should be paid NOW as a matter of JUSTICE.

* * *

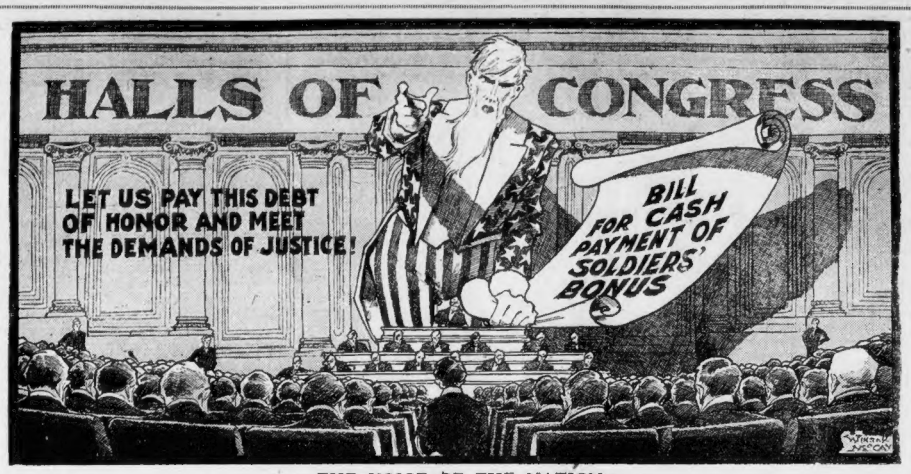
The money represented by these certificates sometimes is referred to as a "bonus." Such money is not a bonus. It is not a gratuity. It is properly and legally called "adjusted compensation."

"Compensation" is pay for services rendered, for goods sold.

Those who rendered civilian service during the World War and those who sold war goods got their money, 100 cents on the dollar, spot cash —and they got PLENTY.

Those who gave their bodies to the government got little in return while in the service and later got "certificates" for the pitiful sums determined as the additional amounts by which their compensation would at a future date be "adjusted" for services which can never be adequately compensated, because there is no "going" price for wounds and disease and human blood.

Adjusted compensation due veterans of the World War is UNPAID WAGES owed by the people of this nation—a great, rich nation—to those who won their safety and the protection of their property and the preservation of their government and its institutions.



HALLS OF CONGRESS
LET US PAY THIS DEBT OF HONOR AND MEET THE DEMANDS OF JUSTICE!
BILL FOR CASH PAYMENT OF SOLDIERS' BONUS
WINTER JACOBY

THE VOICE OF THE NATION

The certificates should be paid NOW as a matter of DECENCY.

* * *

No decent, self-respecting citizen would refuse to pay honestly earned wages to men whom he had engaged to put out a fire threatening his home or his factory.

No decent, self-respecting government should pay off its protectors with I. O. U.'s good only after most of the recipients are dead from disease, starvation and neglect.

And it doesn't help matters to say that the veterans accepted these certificates knowing their pay-you-later conditions.

The veterans had no choice in the matter. It was a one-sided bargain, driven by a master in a superior position, with the veterans at a hopeless disadvantage.

The certificates should be paid NOW as an act of SOUND PUBLIC POLICY.

The government has accumulated hundreds of millions of dollars in a reserve or contingent fund for payment of adjusted compensation certificates at their maturity.

This money is out of circulation. "idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

Released, along with the balance of the certificates' face value, to those to whom it is not only due, but PAST DUE, the combined sum would relieve untold distress, lift much of the present load from charitable agencies, help to rehabilitate veterans who now find themselves unable to support themselves, keep shelter over their heads, feed and clothe their women and children, and enable them to pay the most pressing of their debts and buy the necessities of life.

This, in turn, would invigorate general business by sending the life-blood of money through the entire arterial system of our complex commercial tissues.

* * *

Congress seems to find money for other interests, some of them narrow and sectional, which come to it with stories of need.

Our veteran army is not sectional but national, both in its present distribution and in the character of its high service in war and in peace.

The dire need of many of the members of this veteran army is too obvious to be argued. These men offered everything, and now in the greatest trial they have met since the war ended they are given NOTHING—not even the opportunity to earn a living.

Uncle Sam has distributed millions of pretty paper certificates admitting his debt to these defenders of the nation.

It is time for him to pay his debt.

If he will adjust veterans' compensation NOW, in cash, veterans will be called upon to do less adjusting of their belts.

For a Greater Boston

Suburbs Ultimately Must Come in for Their Own Good

Sooner or later the city of Boston must become Greater Boston, with a population of 2,000,000 people.

World prestige and the self-interest of these cities and towns in the most populous area of the United States require it.

Size counts in this world of ours.

The joint strength of a Greater Boston with a population of 2,000,000 can attract industry, can promote world trade, can acquire a more complete recognition of its rights in national affairs than any one of these cities and towns acting as an independent and separate unit could achieve.

The Greater Boston would avoid waste and duplication of energy.

The health of the people, for example, is a matter of common concern. And how much better it would be to have the public health administerd, or an epidemic combated, by an efficient, well-informed central council of health than by resort to the expenses and vagaries of a score of local health departments without a common plan of their own!

It is dangerous and wasteful that a man whose house is burning must wait for the apparatus to come from his own city or town when there is a fine fire station across the boundary a few rods away.

In the same way, school, water and sewage facilities could be joined and the convenience of the people accommodated with a saving of expense to them.

This merger of interests and facilities with so many evident advantages can be effected by a consolidation of the cities and towns. Or it can be accomplished by the formation of a board of policy, in which every city and town would have adequate representation without sacrifice of any of its inherent independence and local pride.

Mayor Curley and Professor Beale of Harvard have both presented plans for it to the Legislature.

The legislators will hear opposition to both plans, but they should be careful to detect whether the opposition is intended to be for benefit of the people as a whole or for the benefit of local jobholders who fear that any merger might cause them the loss of their jobs.

France's Invisible Wall

Three and a Half Miles High

While this nation talks about air defense, France acts.

French borders are now guarded by an invisible wall, three and a half miles high. Attackers must hurdle that wall before they can strike at the interior.

"Our anti-aircraft defense has reached the point where we are able to block incursions at an altitude of 6000 metres," says Paul Painleve, Minister of Air, in a recent interview in a Paris paper. "Our aerial frontiers are now the most important obstacle in case of an invasion. Only one-fourth of an attacking air fleet could penetrate the defense in case of surprise, and even then its casualties would be very heavy."

That does not interest swivel chair generals or admirals, of whom we have a few, nor does it interest certain of our statesmen, who still think a million farmers would spring to arms if we happened to go to war, and perhaps fight off enemy planes with pitchforks.

SNIFF—SNOOP—SNEAK—SNITCH!

The House Appropriations Committee has provided the funds for five hundred more Dry Snoopers, thereby causing Artist Powers to indulge in the above whimsical reverie.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

Gray Day When Life Seems Suspended

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 — Few spots offer such metropolitan worldliness, sophistication and general wise cracking as the various automats. They supplant the speak-easy back room, the chop house and Broadway curb as the White Way plinth to patter—the open forum for wags!

To the marble topped tables come the jobless actor, the song writer, the tout, the book maker, the grifter and the sundry variety of easy money scamps whose orbitlies between The Circle and old Herald Square. For 15 cents they have a cup of coffee, a sandwich and watch the world roll by.

In more fortunate days many sneaked into the mechanical restaurants, but today they breeze in openly and unashamed. The economic crisis was a great leveler. Everybody almost, living the fair weather life of the Tenderloin, is on the rocks.

The sure thing gamblers who spread themselves in the East 50 hush bazaars featuring champagne and caviar are now thumb-punching for ham and beans. They not only drop into automats themselves but escort their fine-feathered ladies there.

The automat has a lively clatter-bang and touch-and-go akin to that of the large railroad terminal. To the novitiate it is ever stimulating with informality. At the next table some new and flaming Chitterlow may garland a phrase that will illuminate a Peter Arno sketch next week.

* * *

One sees the chorus girl dabbing powder and rouge, between hurried bites. The visiting school-marm, the gigolo, the gum-chewing flapper, the character players, manikins, bootleggers, ten-cents-a-dance girl and others of the conglomerate crowd seen nowhere but in New York.

Four in the afternoon is the Broadway professional breakfast hour and automats surge with town types. But perhaps the most interesting time is after the theaters. From then on until dawn streaks the sky they clot at tables and "dish the dirt."

Montague Glass tells of Mrs. Finklestein enjoying her dinner of heavy borsch soup in her Delancy street flat. While in the midst of it, a knock at the door! Mrs. Finklestein spoons away. Another knock and a voice:

"Mrs. Finklestein, your husband has just been run over by an auto."

Mrs. Finklestein ladles on but finally shouts back:

"When I get through with this soup, will I yell?"

* * *

Floyd Gibbons dropped in to call on Irvin Cobb at his Paris hotel during the war. Picking up a book on the night table he saw that someone had written:

"Mark Twain's mantle has descended to Cobb." Gibbons observed: "That's swell, Irv."

"Yeah?" drawled the humorist. "I may wear it as a vest."

* * *

In a 42d street cafeteria a gruff and hurrying patron asked for two-minute eggs. The waitress explained it would take 10 minutes. Fifteen minutes later the manager, two assistants and the patron were still arguing it out. What a town!

This is one of those thickish gray days when metropolitan life seems suspended. Blurry figures float about in the thin mist and fierce lights are dull blobs. The newsies' cries are effortless and clerks droop in stores. But the most spiritless scene of all was in a Madison avenue pharmacy. A gentleman stood with the receiver to his ear in a telephone booth, sound asleep and gently snoring.

* * *

Nothing to my notion is more depressing than one of those occasional sagging moods that wilts New York. The cause is generally atmospheric. The city has nothing of the gaseous grandeur and muggy nobility characterizing London. It is brilliant only as an electric light is brilliant. Gayety depends on the strength of its kilowatts. A thick fog becomes a wand of gloom affecting the entire populace. A few more lines of this and I would be crying out loud. And I'm all caught up with my winter crying.

What Do You Know?

Fill each blank:

1. About four-fifths of the air is the gas, ——.
2. Moisture in the air is spoken of as ——.
3. Clouds are composed of millions of tiny drops of ——.
4. Soft coal contains less —— than hard coal.
5. —— designed the dome of St. Peter's Church in Rome.

Match correctly:

6. dry	digress
7. hesitate	exposure
8. ease	parched
9. marry	facility
10. swerve	vacillate

Do you know:

11. What is the bounding line of a circle called?
12. What city is the headquarters of the Mormon Church?
13. What Stuart King of England was beheaded?

Answers to today's test:

1. Nitrogen. 2. Humidity. 3. Water. 4. Carbon. 5. Michelangelo. 6. Parched. 7. Vacillate. 8. Facility. 9. Espouse. 10. Digress. 11. Circumference. 12. Salt Lake City, Utah. 13. Charles I.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A RIDGE against the sky—
A girl upon the ridge—

Tumbled hair and wind-blown skirt, molded in flying folds against the slender form. Bright young face laughing, eager, in the fading light. Strong young hands clutching a driver. At her feet, a little ball.

Elsie Robinson

Below, shadows come and go over the meadow. People stoop and rise and walk through the mingled sunlight and shade. It is growing dark and the light is confusing. Somewhere on that meadow—somewhere in that tangled darkness—there is a small ball. She must drive that ball into that small hole. It will not be easy, for she cannot see straight and there are many obstacles in the way. And there's a record to make. So much seems to depend on that stroke!

But she does not hesitate. Facing the shadows, facing the obstacles, she clutches her driver tighter, whirls to position, cries "Fore!" Hearing her, the people fall back. Even the shadows seem to make way for that confident young cry. They part—and, through a lane of light, her strong stroke sends the ball straight toward its mark.

"Fore!" . . . there's a slogan for you, facing the New Year. You, too, stand on a ridge—alone. Before you lies the course, a strange and shadowed course you've never played before. There are obstacles in that course. People in your way. Things in your way. Darkness tangling with the light. Yet you cannot let those obstacles stop you . . . you must drive ahead through it all—

Lift up your head and dare the shadows.

Take hold of your will with your two strong hands!

Take hold of your life with your brain and your heart!

Then, facing the darkness, strike straight and sure—

And nothing on earth can hold you back.

For there's only one obstacle that can stand in your way. You, yourself, are your only important handicap. Your own fear, your own laziness and conceit—they alone can keep you from the mark. Those other things that lie ahead, confusing your aim, are only shadows. They cannot hinder you, if you will rout them with your courage. Face them with a steady mind, with an eager heart—

Cry "Fore!" . . . and drive . . . and the game is yours!
